THE IRISH PAPER MILLS CO., CLONDALKIN,
ASK EVERYBODY TO

SAVE WASTE PAPER

It is not only the patriotic duty but is in the individual interests of every man, woman, and child in the country to collect every available Scrap of Paper so that the Irish Paper Mills may be kept running through this time of shortage of paper-making materials.

THE IRISH PAPER MILLS COMPANY guarantee that packs will be supplied and maximum prices fixed by the Government paid by their Contractors, Messrs. M. Duan and Co.

BANKS, PUBLIC OFFICES, and BUSINESS FIRMS having large stocks of old paper should get rid of it now, as the shortage of paper-making material is becoming very acute, and the problem is to keep Mills running.

THE IRISH PAPER MILLS COMPANY are in a position to guarantee the destruction and repulping of ALL grades of paper, and their contractors will, if necessary, in the case of private documents, prepare the waste paper on the seller's premises and have it taken direct to the Mills and destroyed under the eye of a representative of the seller.

The minimum quantity of waste paper which can be taken in any one consignment is one cwt. Carriage on smaller quantities would be prohibitive.

Send samples, and highest prices will be quoted per return, and cash remitted promptly on receipt of goods.

PLATFORM AND STAGE.

Is it possible to give an adequate interpretation of "The Tempest"? Not a few admirers of it think that, unlike most of Shakespeare's plays, "The Tempest" is too delicate a thing to bear transplanting to the stage. And there is something to be said for their contention. When one reads "The Tempest" in the study, one perceives how spiritual, how ethereal it is. Of fancy and imagination all compact, the play appears to suffer loss by the least contact with things grosser than itself. It cannot well endure the artificial limits of the stage. It is, as Shakespeare tells us through the lips of Prospero, an "insubstantial pageant":

"These our actors,
As I foretold you, were all spirits, and
Are melted into air, into thin air."

Where, therefore, shall we find the spirits that shall worthily interpret it? But, granted that "The Tempest" is to be performed at all, one may make certain inferences from experience. The first is that the atmosphere and the environment must differ from the atmosphere and the environment of modern theatres. The modern stage is too mechanical, too gross, to do it justice. The late Sir Herbert Tree produced "The Tempest" with that fulness of spectacular effect for which his work was noteworthy. But there was in it too much Tree and far too little "Tempest." He overdid the spectacle; the spirit of the piece eluded him, as it is likely to elude all such as would associate it with elaborate display, and that most cumbrous of substantial things—stage mechanism. The theatre that would do justice to "The Tempest" must devise some means of staging it in such a manner as shall leave the fancy and imagination free, as they are free in the seclusion of the study, or in the enchanted region of abstraction. To do so may be almost, if not quite, impossible; but it is worth the trying. And if London may not see the play in an ideal setting, it is now about to witness a departure which suggests a first step in the right direction. At the Queen's Hall on Monday next, the Oxford Hall Musical and Dramatic Association will give an entertainment of music and drama on a draped and decorated platform. Good music will create a favourable "atmosphere" for the playing of "The Tempest" by the Old Vic Players, to the music of Sir Arthur Sullivan, performed by the Oxford Home Choral Society and Orchestra. The rest depends upon the actors. How one wishes, after hearing Mendelssohn's "Midsummer-Night's Dream" music, that he had wedded his ethereal fancy to the spirit that informs "The Tempest"!

"Lot 79," a play by Rida Johnson Young, was produced at the Queen's Theatre, London, on Saturday last. The action of the piece turns largely on the subject of buried treasure, and the author has not squandered brightness or originality in the treatment of it. "Lot 79" is the class of play which becomes either tolerable or intolerable, according as the authors make it so.

One new production—Mr. Alfred Sutro's comedy, "Uncle Anyhow," at the Haymarket—is announced for next week. Mr. Alfred Butt, in conjunction with Mr. André Charlot, intends to give the first performance of Avery Hopwood's farce, "Fair, and Warmer," at the Prince of Wales's Theatre on May 14th.

"Three Weeks" is the title of a play which will be presented next week at the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin. The company includes Miss Amy Coleridge, who for many seasons was a leading member of Mr. Martin Harvey's company; Mr. S. Creagh Henry, Mr. E. F. Hast, Mr. R. A. Coventry, Mr. C. Sauder, Mr. E. A. Beaumont, and Miss Gladys Parnell.

An attractive variety bill has been provided for the Dublin Theatre Royal Hippodrome next week. The Castilians will give their Bronze and Verdigris reproductions of statuary masterpieces, and Barton and Ashley are to be heard in their amusing "Money Talks." Other "turns" are those of Takeo and Korna Namba, Japanese eccentric entertainers; the Dublin Octette, in song and harmony; Sandy Powell, comedian, assisted by Lillie le Main; Ernest Roma, comedian; Mareski, the crazy fiddler; and Kitty Denton's Eight Rays of Sunshine, in their vocal and dancing entertainment. The Royal bioscope is to show the latest pictures.

Mr. Ira Allen's company will appear next week at the Queen's Theatre, Dublin, in the melodrama, "An Irish Heroine." The piece is in three acts, and the scenes are laid in New Ross and its neighbourhood. Mr. Ira Allen plays the part of Captain Hunter Gowan, and Miss May Murnane that of Nora Byrne, sister of Miles Byrne the patriot, who is represented by Mr. P. MacCormack.

A long list of artists has been engaged for the concert under the direction of Mr. Walter McNally at the Queen's Theatre to-morrow evening. The singers include the Misses Helen Moore, Mildred Telford, Joan Burke, Florence Howley; Messrs. Arthur Lucas, W. H. Jones, T. J. Young, Walter McNally, W. J. Lemass, R. H. Jackson, and Irvine Lynch. Other artists are—Miss Mona Murray, violin; Miss Muriel Goodman, 'cello; Sid Kelly, Miss Annie Sandes, and the Meagan Duo, dancers; with Mat. Mathews and Pat MacNamara, humorists.

Next week, in the Abbey Theatre, Dublin, there will be a revival of "The Cross Roads," a play in two acts and a prologue, by Mr. Lennox Robinson, and of Lady Gregory's comedy, "Spreading the News."

The organ and vocal recital which is to take place under the auspices of the Central Advisory Committee, Royal Dublin Fusiliers, on Wednesday evening next in St. Mary's Church, Donnybrook, will be a very attractive one. Madame Alicia Keogh will sing the "Joyous Hymn of Easter" (17th century), "Abide with Me" (Liddle), etc.; while Mr. W. E. Hopkins (organist) will play works by Bach, including the Fugue in G minor, Beethoven, Saint-Saens, and Debussy. The collection is to be devoted to the fund for the purpose of sending food to the men of the Royal Dublin Fusiliers who are prisoners of war. Money is urgently needed for this most worthy object, and it is hoped that the public will give generously.

The Zion Church Choral Society will give a miscellaneous recital on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in Zion Church, Rathgar. The solo singers are Madame Bevel and Mr. Edwin Selfe, and Dr. Marchant will be at the organ.

The Modern Languages Society announces an attractive entertainment in the Molesworth Hall, Dublin, on Tuesday next, at 8 p.m., in aid of St. Dunstan's Hostel for Blinded Soldiers. Two French plays will be performed—"Cinquième! A Gauche!" in which the artists are Mademoiselle Lasne and Messrs. Sansom and Egan; and "Je Renie ma Femme," in which the artists are Mademoiselle Lasne, Mrs. Gasking, Miss McHardy Flint, Messrs. Cairns, Egan, and Sansom. Recitations in French will be given by Major Tate, F.T.C.D., Mr. Sansom, A.R.C.S., and Mesdames Redmond and Doyle.

Mr. and Mrs. Leggett Byrne are busy with their rehearsals of "Our Little Cinderella," which they will present at the Theatre Royal, Dublin, on Friday and Saturday, June 7th and 8th. While adhering to the charming old story, the performance will present several novel features. "Cinderella" has been the delight of generations, and Mr. and Mrs. Leggett Byrne, realising that it is a tale for all time, have not sought inspiration from the past. "Cinderella" will be brought up to date in a twentieth c tury setting.

Mr. Walter McNally and his company of Irish artists will appear in opera next week the Empire Theatre, Dublin. No less than f operas are included in the program "The Lily of Killarney" is to be played Monday and Friday evenings; on Tuesday, the Saturday matinée, and on Saturday e ings, "Maritana"; on Wednesday, "The B mian Girl," and on Thursday "Lurline." T will be played twice nightly. The company cludes the Misses Kathleen M'Gully, Mildred ford, Joan Burke, Maude Clancy, Br Moloney, Florence Evans, and Lily O'Demp Messrs. Arthur Lucas, W. J. Lemass, A. Ir Lynch, W. H. Jones, T. J. Young, R. H. J son, E. O'Connor Cox, John Neilan, etc. A corps de ballet includes the Misses Ai C. Magee, Sybil Ennis, Connie Mulvaney, T Jordan, Phyllis Thorpe, and Eleanor M'Ke These performances by an Irish company c to attract large audiences.

The Four Black Diamonds, quick-ch singers and eccentric dancers, are the prin attraction in next week's programme at Tivoli Theatre, Dublin. Other artists a George Little, comedian; the Sisters Carlin a vocal scena; Doris Durose, comedienne Scottish melodies and dancing; Gordon comedy magician; the Coenens, in an acro act; Jack Roa, character vocalist; and Maitland and company in the sketch ent "'Erb, the Picture-House Door-Keeper."

IRISH COUNTIES WAR HOSPITAL.

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the above hospital was held on the 24th April, at Marlborough Hall, Dublin, Sir Frederick Moore in the chair. Present:—Lieut.-Colonel Seton Pringle, F.R.C.S.I., R.A.M.C.; Dr. J. Lumsden, M.D., D.L., Director-in-Chief Joint V.A.D. Committee for Ireland; Mr. Wm. Geoghegan, M.B.E.; Mr. Gage S. Green, Mr. Kelly, Mr. Henry Hanna, K.C., and Captain Woods, Secretary.

The minutes of the previous meeting was read and confirmed, and a report from the Finance Committee was received and passed.

The Finance Committee reported that the returns for the month of March showed that the cost of maintenance per patient per day to the hospital for that period was four shillings, which, considering that the average number of patients had been somewhat lower, was considered satisfactory.

The Secretary submitted a food analysis statement for the same period, dealing with the quantity of various classes of foods consumed per patient. This statement was considered and approved.

The Secretary reported that he had arranged for the setting of certain fields for grazing from May to November, which transaction was approved by the meeting.

A resolution was passed by the Committee placing on record their high appreciation of the services of J. H. Webb, Esq., F.R.I.A.I., during the past year, in the capacity of consulting architect.

The Colonel's monthly report was then submitted, in which he stated that owing to the increased prices of dressings and drugs, steps had been taken to insure that all economy compatible with efficiency should be observed. Measures had also been taken to obscure the lights in accordance with the directions of the competent naval authority.

A supplementary report from the Matron, dealing with sundry domestic details, was considered and approved.

The Secretary reported that over and above the gifts and subscriptions already acknowledged in the Press, the following had been gratefully received:—

SPORTING NEWS

IRISH RACING.

CURTAILMENT OF FIXTURES.

The Irish Racing Calendar contains the following announcement:—

At the request of the Irish Railway Executive, the Stewards of the Turf Club and of the I.N.H.S. Committee waited on them on Monday, April 15th, and again on Friday, April 19th, and were then informed that owing to the very limited amount of coal at the disposal of the Irish railways, which has necessitated a very drastic reduction in the ordinary train service, and consequent inability on the part of the various companies to afford facilities to persons desiring to attend race meetings, it would be necessary for the Stewards to make a serious curtailment of the list of fixtures already sanctioned.

The Executive Committee and the Stewards went very carefully through the list of fixtures with the view of distributing such meetings as could be permitted to take place throughout the different provinces, having regard to those districts which are particularly interested in horse breeding. The Executive Committee appeared to fully recognise the value and importance of the horse breeding industry, and the Stewards are most grateful for the concessions granted on their representations.

At the conclusion of the interview the following list of fixtures for the next six months was approved and submitted to the Chief Secretary, who signified his approval, and intimated that no more meetings would be allowed, although the list would be subject to further curtailment if in the opinion of the Government this should for any reason become desirable.

LEOPARDSTOWN MEETING—YESTERDAY.

Visitors to the Foxrock course yesterday were rewarded with a capital afternoon's racing, which was carried through under the most delightful weather conditions. The valuable Leopardstown Steeplechase proved a strong attraction, and, appropriately enough, it brought out a representative field of jumpers, and furnished a very interesting contest. That the handicapper had set backers a difficult problem was reflected in the wagering, which took a wide range, and eventually Hotcap and Herod's Daughter left off joint favourites at 6 to 1, a point more being taken about Antipater, Golden Fleece, and Templedowney. The last-named came to grief when they had gone a mile, he being the only one of the sixteen runners to fall. Neither of the English-trained candidates, Antipater and Break Out, ever flattered. On the other hand, Hotcap was always prominent, and, taking command before the last fence was reached, he looked all over the winner; but then Happy Moments shot out from the ruck, and put the issue beyond doubt half-way up the straight, Herod's Daughter depriving Hotcap of second place in the last stride.

Maroc and Little Pickle fought out an exciting finish for the Newtown Plate, the former only prevailing by a short head; and in the Stillorgan Plate Explosive, served by a quick beginning, showed the way home to Some Stuff and two others. There was brisk bidding for the son of Cellini and Gelignite at the ensuing auction, and he may not prove dear at the 260 sovs. Mr. F. Tarrant paid for him. Conyngham Lodge, which stable is so strong in two-year-olds this season, scored yet another success in the Spring Plate, this time by the aid of Raloo, who is by Captivation—Wacouta, and is gifted with a nice turn of speed. Elfterion, for whom Mr. Parrish gave 1,225 gns. at the sale of the late Mr. C. J. Blake's horses, put up a good performance in the Stand Plate, in which, after suffering some interference at a critical part of the race, he ran on with great gameness to overhaul Wildwood and land the odds laid on him. The Stewards subsequently disqualified Wildwood for second place, on the grounds of foul riding on the part of his jockey, T. Burns, whom they suspended from riding at the meeting, and reported him to the Stewards of the Turf Club, who met later and withdrew Burns' riding licence. Backers were wide of the mark when they made Lamentable favourite for the Bray Plate, after winning which Dust Cap was objected to by the owner of Fleeting Peace for carrying wrong weight, and the matter will be investigated to-day at Phœnix Park after the second race. Details:—

2.0.—THE NEWTOWN SELLING HURDLE HANDICAP PLATE of 100 sovs. 1½ m.
Mr. J. W. Widger's b. h. MAROC, by Morena—Naughty Nancy, 6, 10-11 Mr. W. Parkinson 1

Also ran—Perimer (H. Higgins), Good Example (A. Stubbs), Enchanted Prince (Jos. Canty), Green Button (D. Ward), King Melton (Owner), Jilltrim (Hawkins), Three in the Morning (W. Smith). (Winner trained by Mr. Parkinson, Curragh.)

Betting—5 to 1 each agst. Jilltrim and King Melton, 6 to 1 each Enchanted Prince and Little Pickle, 8 to 1 MAROC, 10 to 1 Ashworth, 20 to 1 any other.

Three in the Morning set the pace to Green Button, Little Pickle, Jilltrim, and Ashworth, with Maroc and King Melton next, and Enchanted Prince at the head of the others. Half a mile from home Three in the Morning dropped back, and King Melton and Little Pickle went on together, followed by Ashworth, Jilltrim, and Maroc. At the last hurdle Maroc drew out, and resisting a challenge from Little Pickle, won by a short head; two lengths divided second and third. King Melton was fourth, Jilltrim fifth, Enchanted Prince sixth, and Good Example next.

The winner was sold to Mr. C. L. Davis for 55 sovs.

2.30.—THE STILLORGAN TWO-YEAR-OLD PLATE of 100 sovs. 5 f.

Also ran—Benedictine (H. Beasley). (Winner trained by Mr. Arnott, Clonsilla.)

Betting—Evens Some Stuff, 5 to 2 agst. EXPLOSIVE, 4 to 1 Benedictine, 100 to 8 Brownstown.

Benedictine whipped round at the start, and Explosive, jumping off in front of Some Stuff, and Brownstown, made all the running, and won easily by two and a half lengths; six lengths divided second and third. The winner was sold to Mr. F. Tarrant for 260 sovs.

3.0—THE SPRING PLATE of 200 sovs. For two years old. 5 f.
Sir T. Dixon's f. RALOO, by Captivation—Wacouta, 7-12 Jos. Harty 1

Betting—2 to 1 agst. Belle Hamilton filly and RALOO, 6 to 1 The Devil, 7 to 1 Miss Glad Eyes, 10 to 1 Little Cell, 100 to 6 any other.

Little Cell began slowly, and Raloo, jumping off in front, led from Miss Glad Eyes, Belle Hamilton filly, Pentzia, Gay Bachelor, and The Devil. Opposite the stands The Devil took second place, but failed to overhaul Raloo, who won in a canter by a length; two and a half lengths divided second and third. Little Cell was fourth, Miss Glad Eyes fifth, Gay Bachelor sixth, Cockatoo seventh, and Belle Hamilton filly next.

3.30—THE STAND PLATE of 100 sovs. 1 m.
Mr. W. Parrish's b. c. ELFTERION, by Glasgerion—Elfland, 3, 8-12 C. Aylin 1
Mr. R. A. Mahon's VAGABOND, 5, 8-13 Beary 2

Betting—7 to 4 on ELFTERION, 5 to 1 agst. Wildwood, 20 to 1 each Vagabond and Matcho Paani, 25 to 1 any other.

Wildwood, Lord Glencairn, and Black Demon began slowly, and Girton Miss, jumping off in front, carried on the running from Nereid, Long Sight, Glenlee, Elfterion, and Vagabond, with Wildwood and Black Demon last. A quarter of a mile from home Elfterion closed with Girton Miss, the pair being followed by Matcho Paani and Wildwood, and as they turned into the straight Wildwood drew to the front, but was tackled close home by Elfterion, who won by a head; four lengths separated second and third. White Frost was fourth, Nereid fifth, Matcho Paani sixth, and Warwick next.

The Stewards objected to Wildwood, who was placed second, on the grounds of foul riding on the part of T. Burns, his jockey. After hearing evidence, they disqualified Wildwood for second place, and suspended Burns for the remainder of the meeting, and also reported him to the Stewards of the Turf Club. The Stewards of the Turf Club met later, and withdrew Burns' licence.

4.0—THE LEOPARDSTOWN STEEPLECHASE of 600 sovs. 2 m.
Mr. P. D. Coen's b. g. HAPPY MOMENTS, by St. Monans—Lady Bagnal, a, 10-12 Jos. Canty 1
Capt. Isaac's HEROD'S DAUGHTER, 5, 10-8 C. Hawkins 2

Houlihan), Lianmus (B. Roberts), Isle o' Sky (C. Aylin), The Last (Mr. J. Manley), Rathleague (H. Bletsoe), Landwehr (M. Connors). (Winner trained by P. Behan, Curragh.)

Betting—6 to 1 each agst Hotcap and Herod's Daughter, 7 to 1 each Antipater, Templedowney, and Golden Fleece, 10 to 1 Cresley, 100 to 8 each Break Out, Treaty Stone, and Oppliger, 100 to 6 HAPPY MOMENTS, 20 to 1 any other.

On settling down, Cresley made the running from Rathleague, Break Out, Oppliger, Treaty Stone, and Antipater, with Landwehr, Templedowney, and Golden Fleece next, and Happy Moments and Herod's Daughter at the head of the others. A mile from home Templedowney fell, and Cresley continued to show the way to Herod's Daughter, Golden Fleece, Antipater, Hotcap, Privit, and Happy Moments. Coming to the last fence Cresley was beaten, and Hotcap went on in front of Herod's Daughter, Golden Fleece, and Happy Moments. When fairly in the line for home, Happy Moments challenged the leading contingent, and won by two lengths; a neck divided second and third. Oppliger was fourth, Isle o' Sky fifth, Golden Fleece sixth, Privit seventh, Cresley eighth, The Last ninth, Break Out tenth, Treaty Stone eleventh, Rathleague twelfth, Landwehr thirteenth, and Antipater last.

4.30—THE BRAY STEEPLECHASE of 100 sovs. 3 m.

Also ran:—Lamentable (Hawkins), Long Water (M. Farragher), Brennan (P. Mullen), Flying Lady (M. Dowdall). (Winner trained by R. Moss, Croom).

Betting—6 to 4 on Lamentable, 4 to 1 agst. Fleeting Peace, 6 to 1 Finn-Ma-Coul, 100 to 12 DUST CAP, 100 to 6 any other.

Flying Lady set the pace to Dust Cap, Long Water, Brennan, and Lamentable, with Golden Fleece last, and so they ran for half the journey, when Dust Cap went on from Brennan, Long Water, Finn Ma Coul, and Fleeting Peace. Half a mile from home Fleeting Peace took second place, but failed to overhaul Dust Cap, who won easily by three lengths; fifteen lengths divided second and third. Lamentable was fourth, and Long Water next.

An objection to the winner for carrying wrong weight will be gone into after the second race at the Phœnix Park to-day.

JOCKEY'S LICENCE WITHDRAWN.

Subsequently to the decision of the Stand Plate at Leopardstown yesterday, the Stewards objected to Wildwood, who was placed second by the judge, on the grounds of foul riding on the part of T. Burns, the jockey. Having heard the evidence of Capt. Tuthill, the judge; C. Aylin, the rider of Elfterion, and of T. Burns, the rider of Wildwood, the Stewards disqualified Wildwood, and suspended T. Burns from riding at the meeting, and reported him to the Stewards of the Turf Club. The latter met later on, and withdrew Burns' licence to ride.

RATHMINES RATES.

ONE AND TENPENCE INCREASE.

A special meeting of the Rathmines and Rathgar Urban District Council was held yesterday to consider the striking of an urban rate of 5s. 10d. in the £ and a poor rate of 5s. 7d. in the £ for the year ending 31st March, 1919.

Mr. Robert Benson, Vice-Chairman, presided in the unavoidable absence of Mr. McCormick, the Chairman. He said the poor rate was a matter entirely outside the control of the Council to alter, although it was within their province to comment on the excessive expenditure of the union, which had caused an increase of 1s. 8d. in the £ to the ratepayers of Rathmines. With regard to the urban rate of 5s. 10d. he would point out that 3s. 11d. of this was for fixed charges, which could not be reduced or altered in any way. This, therefore, left only a sum of 1s. 11d. in the £ on which to run the whole township. This was certainly an increase of 2d. in the £ over last year, but when they considered that, owing to the war, the cost of materials for their roads and of fodder for their horses had increased steadily, and that war bonuses had to be granted, this was extremely low. In addition, he might say that owing to the stoppage of building and reductions in valuation the rateable value of the township, which had been increasing year by year until the war, had now decreased some £600 or £700. In 1917 the estimated expenditure was £52,657, but in spite of the increased cost of labour and the rise in the price of materials, the actual expenditure was only £51,505, thus showing a saving of £1,152, which he thought redounded to the credit of the spending committees and to the staffs under their control. He proposed a resolution striking an urban rate of 5s. 10d. in the £ and a poor rate of 5s. 7d. in the £.

Mr. Carruthers opposed the resolution, and said the rate was struck £3,000 below the estimates. As to the present state of the finances of the township he said the Chairman stated that there was a credit balance on the poor rate account of £4,700, and on the township rate of about £1,500. Naturally members of the Council might think that was a balance of about £6,000 they could under-estimate for the ensuing year. He wished to point out that the township rate and the poor rate were only paper accounts, and did not represent the financial state of the township. On 31st March they owed the bank £1,283, and on 1st April they had to meet dividends amounting to between £4,000 and £5,000. It was not, he submitted, business-like to start the year with a debit balance of £1,283, which would be increased by £3,000.

Mr. Bolton said he was to some extent in accord with Mr. Carruthers, but he did not object when a rate was proposed that would enable the business of the township to be carried on.

Mr. J. A. Smyth disagreed with Mr. Carruthers, and thought there was nothing to prevent them from being well within the rates.

The resolution was adopted, Mr. Carruthers dissenting.

SOCIETY FOR PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.

The annual general meeting of the Dublin Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was held yesterday afternoon in the Molesworth Hall, Dublin. Mr. Joseph Abbott was appointed Chairman, after a vote being taken to decide whether he or Major Shewell should take the chair.

Sir Charles Cameron wrote regretting his inability to be present.

Mr. C. E. Grahame Harvey, Secretary, submitted the annual report, which recounted the work of the various departments of the Society, and stated that the subscriptions amounted to £286, an increase of £18 over those of the previous year. The number of cases of cruelty reported during the year was 453, as against 552 in the previous year.

Mr. Freeman W. Deane, in proposing the adoption of the report, expressed regret at the death of Professor Mettam, Mr. B. H. O'Reilly, and other supporters of the Society. He was glad to say that by hard work, mainly by the efforts of Mr. Harvey, the subscriptions, despite many handicaps, had increased. It was surprising to find only one award made under the Swifte Bequest for a successful prosecution for cruelty to a cat, the award being given to Mr. R. J. McCoy, District Inspector R.I.C., Newmarket, Co. Cork. It was gratifying to find increased activity, bearing on the work of the Society, on the part of the Dublin Metropolitan Police.

Major Shewell seconded the motion, and said that the report showed that the Society was doing very important work in the city.

A lady member drew attention to a paragraph in the report stating that the Society's inspectors were denied access to the cattle lairs and ships at the port of Dublin. She thought public attention should be given to the matter, and that other societies should be asked whether their inspectors were also denied access to lairs and ships in their districts.

Major Shewell thought that there was a marked improvement in the work of the Society during the year, and he attributed that to the exertions of the new Chairman, Mr. Justice Shell. At the same time, he thought that certain branches of the Society had not received sufficient attention. Humane slaughtering should have been given greater attention. The financial position of the Society was, in his opinion, perilous.

Mr. Deane said that the Society was in a healthy financial condition, there being a sum of over £5,000 to its credit.

The report was unanimously adopted.

Officers were elected for the ensuing year.

FOOD CONTROL COMMITTEE FOR IRELAND.
IMPORTANT NOTICE.
MARKETING OF EGGS.

The Food Control Committee for Ireland have ascertained that very serious loss of valuable food is caused by the delay in marketing and shipment of Eggs, as a result of which large quantities are rendered quite stale and useless, and have to be destroyed.

The Committee hereby direct the attention of Poultry-keepers, Traders, and all persons concerned, to Clause 1 (c) of the Egg (Restriction) Order, 1918, which reads:—

"No person shall damage, or waste or permit to be damaged or wasted, or otherwise treat or permit to be treated, any egg or egg products so as to render the same less fit for human consumption or for the manufacture of such articles."

Infringements of the Order are summary offences against the Defence of the Realm Regulations, the maximum penalty involved being a fine of £100 or six months' imprisonment, or both.

THE DUBLIN UNITED TRAMWAYS COMPANY (1896), LIMITED.

Owing to the great increase in wages, in the cost of coal, and in all working expenses, and to the reduced earnings which must result from the curtailed service required to meet the conditions imposed by the Shipping Controller, it has become imperative to revise the fares on the Dublin United Tramways.

On and after Saturday, the 27th April, the Revised Scale will come into operation, particulars of which will be posted in the cars.

There are few, if any, Tramways in the United Kingdom on which the fares have not been already increased, some of them more than once, but the Dublin Company has hitherto refrained from taking this step, which, they regret, can be no longer delayed.

AN APPEAL FOR FUNDS FOR
SIR PATRICK DUN'S HOSPITAL.

Powerscourt, Enniskerry,
Co. Wicklow.

As a Life Governor, and one who has long been interested in Sir Patrick Dun's Hospital, I shall be much obliged by your giving your kind attention to the accompanying appeal on behalf of the Hospital which, as you will see, is in financial straits. It would be a calamity to the poor whom it serves so efficiently if its usefulness is to be impaired by want of funds. I know that everyone feels that war charities have the first claim nowadays, but it is still necessary to keep the old hospitals going, and even more necessary than before, because of the war calls.

Sir Patrick Dun's Hospital has also been doing its share of war work, and has taken in and cared for many wounded soldiers.

I hope most sincerely that this appeal will be so well answered that the present debt will be cleared off.—Yours truly,

SYBIL POWERSCOURT.

The first list of subscriptions was acknowledged in the Press on 13th April.

The Governors return their best thanks to the donors of the subscriptions now acknowledged.

ELECTION NOTICES.

TO THE ELECTORS OF EAST CAVAN.

GENTLEMEN,

On last Sunday the Nationalists of all sections in Ireland signed the Covenant against conscription, and promised to stand together. On the same day the Sinn Fein Clubs of East Cavan selected Mr. Arthur Griffith as their candidate for a constituency which the Irish Party have held for over forty years. Having waited for six days in the expectation that the question of filling the vacancy might be amicably arranged by the leaders at the National Conference, the Nationalists of East Cavan held a convention on Friday, 26th April, in Bailieborough, at which I was unanimously chosen as Nationalist candidate for the constituency. Like most Irishmen, I had hoped that the pledge of Sunday—that we should unite in face of a common danger—was binding, and I shall wait until Monday next for Mr. Griffith's answer in the Daily Press as to whether he means this, and if he is agreeable to a compromise on the point at issue. If not, my own suggestion would be that the Lord Mayor of Dublin, who has been entrusted at the Conference, at which Mr. Griffith attended, with the important mission of presenting a united Ireland's case to the President of the United States, should be chosen for East Cavan. If this suggestion comes to naught, the blame for this, and for any other, division in the ranks that may occur must rest upon Mr. Griffith's shoulders.

JOHN F. O'HANLON, Cavan.

The Loss of Kemmel.

Yesterday's news from Flanders is serious, and it would be foolish to pretend otherwise. The Germans have captured the Kemmel height, the key position of the ridge line south-west of Ypres. That success, unless it should be reversed, is calculated ultimately to involve an extensive modification of the British line as it now stands between Ypres and the sea at Nieuport. We must endeavour steadily—it is the best corrective for pessimism—to view this grave episode in its proper perspective as a part of the great battle which began on March 21st. The enemy began it with some two hundred divisions in line on the western front, of which over a hundred and seventy were suitable for offensive action. They opened the offensive movement in Picardy with fifty divisions, increased before the end of that movement to eighty. It had no sooner become apparent that this movement was baulked of strategic success than they began a new offensive movement in Flanders, which last week seemed also to have been baulked of strategic success, and had by then absorbed, perhaps, thirty divisions. The enemy, then, found themselves in possession of two salients, the larger in Picardy, the smaller in Flanders, in neither of which they had yet achieved a success even locally decisive; and they had still in hand between sixty and seventy fresh divisions. In this situation they began on Wednesday limited, but very intense, offensive action on short fronts towards the apex of either salient, doubtless intended to test the strength of the Allied line at its points of junction, with the purpose, if a weak spot should disclose itself, of striking at it with the whole available force of reserves concentrated close in the rear. Of these simultaneous efforts that undertaken in Picardy has failed completely. It is important that we should not overlook this failure in our natural preoccupation with the success in Flanders; for in a test of strength in which the numerical factor will be ultimately decisive expensive failure counts for very much in the calculation.

In Flanders, on the other hand, the enemy's effort has met with considerable success. The strength of the Allied positions on the Kemmel ridge line was first tested on Wednesday. On Thursday no less than nine German divisions were brought into action on a front of not much more than five miles in a desperate attempt to conquer the Kemmel height. After furious fighting throughout the day, in which the Germans lost very heavily, the position, which stands somewhat isolated from the rest of the ridge, was won, apparently by an enveloping movement. Yesterday the battle continued furiously, extending at the same time over a wider front. In the early morning the Allies counter-attacked, at first with some success, but later the enemy renewed their attacks in great strength. Their purpose was clearly to descend rapidly from Kemmel upon the rear of Ypres, while at the same time they delivered holding attacks astride the Ypres-Comines Canal south-east of the town. This determined attempt immediately to exploit the capture of Kemmel by cutting off the forces to the east was frustrated by a stout resistance, in which, although the Allied line was pressed back at some points, the part of the line covering direct access to the rear of Ypres held fast. The loss of Kemmel might otherwise have involved disaster. It has had no such consequence: that is the essential point of the action of the last two days. Its loss, however, must still be serious. Kemmel completely overlooks the flat country about Ypres; and the forces in and east of Ypres, with their main line of retreat now not more than three miles distant from the enemy's northward advance, are in a situation which is already all but untenable. We must, therefore, be prepared for early news of the evacuation of Ypres and of a withdrawal in conformity with that evacuation from the line of the Yser to the north of it. That result must follow inevitably from the loss of the Kemmel ridge unless the Allies are in a position immediately to restore tho situation.

Whether the Allies can, or will, attempt to restore the situation we have no means of judging. If they do not make such an attempt with success, retirement on the flank between Ypres and the sea is the alternative. Such a retirement may be carried back some distance; for the district between Ypres and the sea is an intricate country, with no railway communications except the coast line from Dunkirk to Dixmude. The serious feature of such a retirement, of course, is that it would reduce by so much the already narrow margin of ground for manœuvre between the Allied line and the Channel. The whole situation, in effect, involves the hardest test to which our Army and the nation behind it can be put. It is a situation in which everything, so far as the moral of the nation is concerned, depends wholly on our confidence in the Commander-in-Chief; for he alone is in a position to judge factors in it which are necessarily concealed from us. We can study movements on the map. We can study also to some extent the progressive exhaustion of the enemy's offensive strength. What we cannot study is the capital factor in the whole matter—the relation of these movements and of this exhaustion to the use which General Foch designs for the Allied reserves. Ultimate victory will rest with the side which has an adequate balance of reserves in hand when the other side is exhausted. The enemy's strategy deliberately contemplates a very rapid rate of exhaustion as the price of a rapid decision. The Allies' strategy obviously contemplates the reverse of this process—the constant deferring of a decision at the least price which must be paid for averting it until the enemy's final exhaustion leaves the Allies their opportunity. Only General Foch is competent to strike a balance at any given moment and to determine in what situation, and to what extent, circumstances require the varying of that underlying strategic conception. The less it is varied the greater is the immediate strain and the greater also the ultimate prospect of victory. It is a time to test our patience and our faith.

Trade After the War.

The final report of Lord Balfour of Burleigh's Committee on Commercial and Industrial Policy after the War is a thoroughly sane document. Its chief moral is that, when peace is declared, British employers and employed should make every effort to attain the largest possible volume of production in order to secure the speedy recovery of our industrial and financial position. The report recommends that the existing prohibitions on the importation of goods of enemy origin shall be continued for at least twelve months after peace. The Committee does not believe that the Empire can be made wholly self-supporting as regards the supply of raw materials. It favours a "selective policy" which would study the relative importance of every commodity, whether industrial or military, the sources of supply, and the likelihood of their disturbance in case of war; and it would establish a special board for the protection of essential industries. There will be much discussion of the report's approval of large combinations of British traders against foreign competition. The dangers of the "trust" are always obvious, and some of them are noted by Mr. John O'Neill, the Irish representative on the Committee, in his mainly dissentient report. The Committee believes, however, that, in order to meet some of the problems which will confront us after the war, individual methods must be supplemented or replaced by co-operation in respect of the securing of raw materials, production, scientific and industrial research, and marketing. In other words, we must fight German trade after the war with the weapons with which it was attacking British trade before the war. The Committee does not support the idea of an Imperial Bank of Industry; it considers that the financial needs of British industry are likely to be met more effectively by private banking enterprise than by a State-controlled institution. The Committee's most important recommendations are, of course, those which deal with fiscal policy in the light of war experience. They include Government action to promote and safeguard "pivotal" industries; State aid to important industries which are hampered by foreign competition, and State supported efforts to develop trade with the Dominions and with our Allies. A majority of the Committee rejects a comprehensive tariff scheme on various grounds, including the danger of an undue increase in the cost of home production; but it advocates fiscal protection in special cases—for instance, to prevent "dumping," to maintain "pivotal" industries, and to secure preferential treatment for the Oversea Dominions. On the whole, the report provides the country with a wise, practical, and far-reaching policy of fiscal and industrial reconstruction. Mr. O'Neill's Irish protest, or criticism, is based on what he regards as the more or less conflicting interests of English and of Irish trade and industry. It is, in fact, a plea for a self-governing Ireland, with full control of her own Customs and Excise.

The Phantom Pig.

From the earliest times war has been a breeder of marvels. Often, when the old Romans made their annual excursions against the Aequians and Volscians, cocks were turned into hens (we have Livy's word for it) and blood spouted from sheaves of corn. When Titus took Jerusalem phantom armies fought in the sky. In later centuries St. James was wont to lead the Spaniards into action with his head under his arm. Hitherto the greatest of all wars has been barren of any portent save the angels of Mons, but Ireland now comes to the rescue. If she is unwilling to supply the Allies with men, she is at least ready to furnish them with miracles. A few weeks ago a baby was born in the West of Ireland which, at the age of one hour, made a loud and interesting remark about the war, and then died. This happened, we think, in Mayo, and it aroused the competitive instinct of Roscommon. A large black pig has appeared at Kiltrustan which shows itself only to children: sometimes, when visibility is good, the pig condescends to be accompanied by six bonhams. The vision is not vouchsafed to older people—not even to clergymen and schoolmasters. Seniors stand in awe while the children describe minutely the movements of the porcine portent. Unfortunately, although the miracle is but a few days old, at least two versions of it are already extant. In one only three little girls, and in the other all children, are privileged to see the pig. The story must be true because, in the first place, "the inhabitants of the locality are all respectable, well-to-do people of the farming class," and, in the next place, the phantom fulfils an ancient prophecy. Some of the well-to-do people think that it is an evil omen for all Ireland; others are anxious, perhaps not unnaturally, to localise the trouble in Ulster. Our own theory is that the pig is the ghost of one of the animals which were slain recently, in dramatic circumstances in the streets of Dublin.

LORD SALISBURY AND HOME RULE.

SOME QUESTIONS.

Lord Salisbury, in a letter to the Press on the Home Rule question, says:—

It is natural that the events through which we are passing should have removed a great many political landmarks. We must take care not to lose our way. And in this disintegration of political opinion there is a real danger that we should forget we are members of a great self-governing community, called upon, it is true, to accept drastic limitations upon our freedom in order to win the war, but not called upon to be led blindfold into great organic changes by self-constituted combinations of statesmen, whose inaction has led us into the very emergency in Ireland from which they do not seem to have the capacity to extricate us. We hear of Ministerial Committees engaged in knocking together, under extreme pressure, a scheme for the profound and permanent alteration of the Constitution, of which it is almost certain nobody will approve, and which it is to be feared is intended to be forced down our throats by every Parliamentary device. And this because we are at war. No doubt we are at war, but that is a reason for attending to the war and leaving the Constitution alone.

The argument, however, is this:—The Government have brought us into this Irish mess; the Government have promised a new Home Rule Bill to Ireland; this will not get us out of the mess, though it may break our faith with Ulster, and will involve a revolution in the constitution of the United Kingdom, which there is no time properly to consider. Nevertheless, the Government will resign if we so much as require time to consider it, and the Government are indispensable. Sir, the Government were rash to make any such promise. The Irish people at this moment, whatever may be true hereafter, are utterly unfit for self-government on a Federal, or any other, basis. They are neither united enough nor orderly enough, nor loyal enough. The touchstone of fitness for any self-government that any British party is prepared to give them is their readiness to accept the supremacy of the Imperial Parliament in military affairs. That is the rule in the Dominions; that is the rule in the United States. Every Home Rule Bill has laid it down as essential, and every sane Home Rule Bill must. So far, however, from this acceptance being the case, three parts of Ireland is confederating to resist a military Act of Parliament of the greatest urgency.

There is really nothing more to be said. The question is, as it were, ipso facto decided. In the face of this I do not imagine that even the Government consider themselves pledged. Anyhow, it is not for the Government to decide, but for Parliament, and the electors of this country. And the Government are not indispensable any more than the late Government was. But if the country is to decide—if the country is to govern itself—it must shake itself. Its representatives in Parliament must not be allowed to say, with bated breath: "We must, I suppose, accept anything the Government imposes on us." They must weigh the policy of the Government according to their conviction, and according to their pledges to Ulster, and pronounce judgment upon it. After all, what is the policy of the Government? Is it to give Ireland Home Rule, and to enforce conscription? I do not know what the difficulties of enforcing conscription have become, but I am well assured that a Government which is weak enough to concede Home Rule to rebellion will never have the strength to enforce anything. If this be so, what judgment ought Parliament to pronounce? The question is: Are the working classes of Great Britain ready to give self-government to Irishmen who refuse to share their burden in the fighting ranks? Are they prepared to set up a semi-independent State for Nationalists who are making common cause with Sinn Feiners, the friends of Germany? Are they willing, in the vain endeavour to placate these gentlemen, to prejudge the future constitution of England and Scotland, perhaps fatally, without time or opportunity for consideration? If not, let their representatives in Parliament see to it.

MR. WILLIAM O'BRIEN AND THE HOME RULE BILL.

Interviewed as to the promised Home Rule Bill, Mr. William O'Brien, M.P., said—English Ministers had so often broken their word with Ireland that nobody attached any importance to their latest manœuvre. They promised to exempt Ireland from conscription, and have brought us, he continued, to the verge of civil war by breaking their word. They have spent the last twelve months in fiddling with Home Rule to keep America in good humour. The so-called Irish Convention was constituted with the knowledge, if not the deliberate intention, that it must fail to arrive at a substantial agreement. They did not want a substantial agreement, because they shrank from forcing it in Ulster. Had they really wished to arrive at an agreement, and put it in operation, they could easily have got one by a small conference of known friends of peace, followed by an immediate referendum. Even after wasting twelve months in secret sittings of the Convention, with the object of marking time for American purposes, it is still made a crime under the Defence of the Realm Act for Irishmen to make any reference to the proceedings of the Convention. These being our experiences of English Ministers, they can pass or drop their new sham Home Rule Bill on their own responsibility. We don't believe them, and we won't touch them. The Australian Bishops' programme—"Dominion Home Rule forthwith for all Ireland and no military compulsion"—represents our irrevocable demand.

SIR FILIPPO DE FILIPPI'S LECTURE.

The lecture by Sir Filippo De Filippi on "Italy's Part in the War," which was to have been delivered in Trinity College on Tuesday next, has been postponed until further notice.

LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
FRIDAY NIGHT.

The admission in this morning's communiqué that the Germans have obtained a footing on the slopes of Mount Kemmel prepared people for the serious news that followed later. The strategic value of Mount Kemmel in the northern part of our front is great, and unless the Allies can recover it our hold upon Ypres, with all that Ypres means, may have to be relaxed. But there will be no helter-skelter withdrawal. All preparations for this eventuality have long been made.

Lord Rhondda's reported resignation will be a severe blow to a Ministry which is at present steering through troubled waters. In this case there is no suggestion of any difference of opinion with regard to policy. The Food Controller has lived in an atmosphere of criticism ever since his appointment, as was bound to be the case. But no special attack upon his department is pending, or we may be sure that he would have hung on until the matter was brought to an issue. The cause is simply ill-health, brought on by the strain of his duties, and aggravated by his too close devotion to his work and by his determination to set a good example to the rest of the community by virtually starving himself.

It can be well believed that the Prime Minister will do his best to induce Lord Rhondda to reconsider his decision, for it will be extremely difficult to find another man of the same qualities—a thick skin being one of the most necessary—to take up a most difficult and thankless job. Mr. Andrew Weir—a namesake, but no relation, of the new Air Minister—is mentioned in connection with it, and so is Mr. Clynes, M.P., who has done consistently good work as Lord Rhondda's deputy in the House of Commons.

The epidemic of resignations that has broken out in the past few days has naturally aroused apprehension lest it should spread still further and higher, and involve the head of the Government himself. Mr. Lloyd George's position is certainly less strong than it was at the beginning of the year. He has more critics in the Press and fewer defenders. The greatest strength of his position is the absence of any well-known competitor. Those who are most bitter in their attacks upon the Prime Minister were equally virulent in their criticism of Mr. Asquith, and would certainly oppose to the utmost any attempt to bring him back. Yet he is the only politician who has anything like a large party behind him. The Morning Post has been urging the merits of Sir George Cave. The Home Secretary has certainly shown great Parliamentary ability, and he has the respect of three-quarters of the members of the House of Commons; but he is not much known outside its walls, and, though I do not suppose he would refuse the Premiership if he thought there were a general demand for him, he is the last man in the world to obtrude himself upon the public or to intrigue against his colleagues.

Curiously enough, in all the conversations on the subject which daily take place in clubs and other places where men do congregate there is one name that you hardly ever hear mentioned—that of Mr. Balfour. It seems to be tacitly assumed that he has definitely renounced any ambition to be Prime Minister a second time, and that, in any case, he is too old. It is true, of course, that Mr. Balfour is within a few months of 70, yet he is younger than Gladstone was when he formed the second of his four Administrations, and he displays no falling-off in mental or physical vigour. As a War Minister he won his spurs in 1900, when, owing to the illness of Lord Salisbury, the general direction of the campaign in South Africa fell upon his shoulders; and, if the Irish problem is still acute, there is certainly no one who understands its main outlines better than the man who, after being the most capable Chief Secretary of modern times, was responsible as Prime Minister for the passage of the Wyndham Act. If a new Administration is required, I can think of no one more likely to form one successfully.

Lord Pirrie is to make a frank statement on the position as regards shipbuilding when he meets the members of the House of Commons in conference on Tuesday evening. It is said to-day that the April output of tonnage from the shipyards will greatly exceed that of March, and we are at last catching up to our losses by the submarine campaign. The margin between new ships and marine losses, however, is still too narrow. Further efforts are necessary to secure national safety.

The calling up of men of forty-four and forty-five has come much sooner than many people anticipated, and it seems quite possible that the further classes under the new Military Service Act will also be called up before the summer is over. Now that the man-power question seems to be in the way to a settlement, the question of women comes to the front. Sir William Bull, who is to introduce a Bill calling for conscription for women under thirty, is strongly of opinion that conscription of women will come within the next six months. The war, in his view, will last another two or three years, and the services of every woman who can work will be required.

Seldom has any public document fallen more absolutely flat than Lord Bryce's report upon the House of Lords. This is chiefly due, no doubt, to the pressure of more important events, but partly, too, to the inherent weakness of the recommendations. People are not so much enamoured of the House of Commons just now that they are prepared to entrust its members with the selection of a majority of the Second Chamber. The whole scheme reminds one of those model constitutions which the Abbé Siéyes used to draw up during the French Revolution, and which usually perished before they were properly born. Lord Loreburn, one of the dissentient minority, might have spared himself the pains of attacking the proposals in the Pall Mall Gazette to-night, for it is not the least likely that any action will be taken upon them.

LORD ROTHERMERE'S SUCCESSOR.

The King has been pleased to approve the appointment of Sir William Weir to be Secretary of State for the Air Forces, in succession to Lord Rothermere.

LORD RHONDDA.

The Ministry of Food wish it to be known that they have no information with regard to the report that Lord Rhondda has resigned.

The Press Association learned late last night on unimpeachable authority that the situation regarding Lord Rhondda is that purely owing to grounds of ill-health, and the unlikelihood of his being able to return to duty for some weeks to come, his lordship has placed his resignation in the hands of the Prime Minister. The resignation has not yet been accepted.

LORD NORTHCLIFFE NOT RESIGNING.

Lord Northcliffe, who is recovering from a severe attack of influenza, extending over nine weeks, replying to a telephone inquiry yesterday, stated that, while he has protested publicly and privately against the recent weakening of the War Cabinet, he has agreed, at the request of other members of the Cabinet, to continue the difficult and delicate work in which he is engaged until the Government can find someone else to carry on his tasks. He is in no sense a member of the Government, and has declined to become one in order that his newspapers may be free to speak plainly about certain aspects of the political and military situation. During the whole of his illness he has carried on his work, and he is leaving to-day for Bournemouth, where it is hoped that he will be quickly restored to his usual health.

THE MILITARY CROSS.

Mr. J. Beattie, of Kilmainham, Dublin, has received news that his son, Captain W. H. Beattie, Royal Irish Fusiliers, recently wounded, has been awarded the Military Cross for gallantry in the successful operations north of Jerusalem. Captain Beattie has seen service on the Gallipoli and Macedonian fronts, and was previously wounded at Suvla Bay in 1915.

FROM "THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY.

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THE PROPRIETORS OF THE TIMES.)

KEMMEL AND THE SOMME.

Our line, says The Times, commenting on the loss of Mont Kemmel, astride the Ypres-Comines Canal, near St. Eloi, holds firm, but meanwhile it must be recognised that Ypres itself, and the positions around it, are very gravely menaced by the enemy's undoubted success. A German newspaper observed recently that "the idea underlying the whole of the great battle in France is that of the annihilation of the enemy reserves." Even Von Bohn's diversion south of Chauny, and through the Forest of Coucy, is represented as being not so much an attempt to protect Von Hutier's flank, but rather a device to induce General Foch to extend his reserves. We have repeatedly pointed out of late that, however menacing the attack near Ypres may seem, it must be steadily remembered, that the great masses of the enemy's forces are still concentrated in the big new salient between Arras and the River Avre. The battle is not yet fully renewed. These local offensives are being conducted in great strength, and it is said that nine German divisions were used on Thursday to capture Mont Kemmel; but down on our old battlefield of the Somme, and south of that river, far larger German forces are waiting in the hope that the Allied strength will be dissipated elsewhere. Grave risks must be run, and the position calls for the utmost calmness and the strongest nerves, but the principal point of danger is still the line of the Somme. We may have to give ground in the north, but retirement there should not be irreparable. A successful attack by the enemy in the direction of Amiens, followed by a thrust to the Somme estuary, would cut us off from the main French forces. This purpose of the Germans must be averted at all costs, and that is why the crushing repulse of the foe at Villers-Bretonneux on Wednesday and Thursday must be counted as of the highest importance. The task of the Allies is to fight for every foot of ground in the north, but not to be diverted from the supreme necessity of maintaining their line astride the Somme before Amiens.

THE FALL OF MOUNT KEMMEL.

It appears that Kemmel, says the Special Correspondent of The Times, was surrounded and lost by nine o'clock in the morning. There had been heavy shelling throughout the night, with a great quantity of gas shells, and much use of long range guns against the back areas. An intense bombardment began between midnight and one o'clock, and continued till between three and four, when the attack was delivered on a wide front from near Wytschaete, where British troops were, along the front Kemmel to west of Dranoutre, which line was held by the French. Penetration seems to have been made at two points approximately simultaneously—namely, at the juncture of the French and the British to the east of Kemmel, and through the French on the west—and, pouring through on both sides, the enemy had Kemmel surrounded and the garrison cut off, as I said above, by nine o'clock. Some day we shall have, perhaps, a detailed account of the heroic resistance of the garrison after that. Certainly fighting went on on the hill for seven or eight hours, or till mid-afternoon. I understand that the French troops had sworn before that they would never give Kemmel to the Germans while they lived, and they did not; but we can only roughly picture the scene, of which the airmen caught a glimpse as the Germans from all sides swarmed up the hill, and the Frenchmen, taken on both flanks and in the rear, fought on in lessening numbers, and in a gradually reducing area, until at last only the hill top was crowned with blue, as the defenders, facing all ways, made their last stand. When all is known, I believe that last fight of the French troops on Kemmel Hill will stand as one of the most stirring episodes of the war. Around Kemmel itself the German losses were undoubtedly very heavy.

TRADE SAFEGUARDS.

Commenting on the report of Mr. Asquith's Committee on Trade and Industrial Policy after the War, The Times says:—Plainly a single idea is the root of all these positive recommendations—that financial and industrial policy must in future concern itself with defence as the primary condition of existence. This, speaking very generally, is the lesson which German industrial aggression, as an essential element in the policy which prepared the war, has taught this country, and it is in this sense that the Paris resolutions express the determination of the Allies in a form to which practical application can be given from the moment when the war ends. The Committee have built on this foundation their recommendations for new economic and industrial measures. Farther than this they have refused to go. They reject a comprehensive tariff for Great Britain, they commit themselves to no definite opinion as to State aid for shipping, they pronounce against the wholesale denunciation by Great Britain of existing commercial treaties, and they think that "it would be unwise to enter on a policy of checking the establishment or continuance of agencies or branches of foreign banks and insurance companies in this country." These and other negations are, doubtless, the result of the diversity of economic opinion represented on the Committee.

LORD RHONDDA'S POSITION.

Lord Rhondda, says The Times, in view of the illness which is still confining him to his house in Monmouthshire, has offered to the Prime Minister the resignation of his position as Food Controller. Strong pressure, it is understood, is being exerted to persuade him to retain his office. Whether the pressure will be successful depends entirely on Lord Rhondda's health, which is far from good.

CHANGES IN IRELAND.

Meanwhile the urgent need for new appointments in Ireland remains, says The Times, if [illegible] because it is accepted as a foregone conclusion. Mr. Duke's desire for legal promotion is well known, and it is expected that his replacement will be attended by a simultaneous change [illegible] Viceroyalty. Parliamentary opinion [illegible] a wholesale change while the Government [illegible] about it, in view of the difficult situation which is obviously developing. COURT CIRCULAR.

VICEREGAL LODGE, DUBLIN.

FRIDAY.

The Most Rev. Archbishop Bernard, D.D. (Archbishop of Dublin); the Right Hon. the Lord Chancellor, the Right Hon. Lord Justice Ronan, Lieutenant-General the Right Hon. Sir Bryan Mahon, K.C.V.O., and the Attorney-General had the honour of being invited to dine with His Excellency this evening.

ALBERT MEDAL AWARDS.

The King has been pleased to award the Albert Medal to Lieutenant F. Kelly, 6th Battalion Duke of Wellington's West Riding Regiment; Flight Sergeant A. E. Warne, 24th Wing Aeroplane Repair Section; Flight Sergeant H. Cannon, Training Squadron; and to Trooper W. G. Gunner, Dragoon Guards, attached Army Pay Corps.

Lieutenant Kelly saved the life of a soldier at a camp in England, where rifle grenade practice was being carried out. The soldier struck a loophole with his bayonet, and caused a fuse of a grenade to ignite. Lieutenant Kelly shouted to the man to drop his rifle, but he lost his nerve, and remained gripping the rifle. Lieutenant Kelly then seized the rifle and threw it away. He then tried to push the man out of the emplacement, but the bomb exploded, and they were both slightly injured.

THE GREAT BATTLE.

KEMMEL HILL LOST.

ALLIED ADVANCE AT HANGARD.

Last night's despatch from Sir Douglas Haig reports the loss of Kemmel Hill and village, and Dranoutre. Fighting, which continued throughout the day, was very severe. The Germans attacked with nine divisions. The British and French counter-attacked, and for a time made some progress, but the enemy threw great masses of men against the Allied positions. Most of his attacks were held, and he suffered heavy losses, but he succeeded in pressing back the line in the direction of Locre, and made progress on both sides of the Ypres-Comines Canal. South of the Somme the French and British carried their line forward in the neighbourhood of Hangard.

The French despatch reports violent artillery fire south of the Somme. Numerous surprise attacks were made by our Allies, and in Lorraine and in the Vosges they took some prisoners.

The Germans claim that at Kemmel Hill they made 6,500 prisoners, most of whom were French.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

Friday, 10.50 a.m.

On the Bailleul-Hollebeke front, after severe fighting, lasting throughout the day, against greatly superior forces, the Allied troops were compelled to give ground, and the enemy obtained a footing on Kemmel Hill.

Fighting still continues in the neighbourhood of Dranoutre, Kemmel, and Verstraat.

We carried out a successful minor operation during the night west of Merville, and captured fifty prisoners and three machine guns.

Hostile artillery has been active along our front from the Lys River to Givenchy.

South of the Somme hostile posts which were holding out south-east of Villers Brettonneux have been cleared by our troops.

The enemy's artillery has been active also in this area with gas shells.

On the remainder of the British front there is nothing to report.

9.10 p.m.

North of the Lys the battle is continuing fiercely on the whole front from the neighbourhood of Dranoutre to the Ypres-Comines Canal. The enemy has gained possession of Dranoutre, Kemmel Hill, and village.

The enemy's attack yesterday was made in great strength by nine German divisions. Early this morning French and British troops counter-attacked, and succeeded at first in making some progress and capturing a number of prisoners. Later in the day the enemy renewed his attacks, directing his assaults with particular insistence against Allied positions from Locre to La Clytte, and astride the Ypres-Comines Canal.

In the neighbourhood of La Clytte and Scherpenberg all the enemy's attacks have been held, but after severe fighting, in the course of which a series of determined attacks were repulsed with heavy loss to his troops, he succeeded in pressing our line back in the direction of Locre.

On both sides of the Ypres-Comines Canal the enemy has also made some progress.

Early this morning French and British troops attacked the enemy's positions south of the Somme in the neighbourhood of Hangard and Hangard Wood, and have carried their line forward at certain points by heavy fighting. On the remainder of the British front the situation is unchanged.

Aviation.—On the 25th inst. mist, during the morning, and thunderstorms later in the day, prevented much flying being accomplished until evening. In the northern area, however, the enemy's positions in the neighbourhood of Kemmel were reconnoitred by our machines, our pilots being compelled to fly within a few feet of the ground in order to make observation possible. Six hundred and fifty bombs were dropped by us on Menin, Roulers, Armentières, and on the enemy's billets. Ten hostile machines were brought down in the air fighting, and two others were driven down out of control. Four other German machines were shot down by anti-aircraft gunfire, and one by fire from our infantry. Two of our machines are missing.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

Friday.

To the South of the Somme there was a violent artillery duel in the course of the night.

We made numerous surprise attacks on various points of the front, notably in the region east of Lassigny, between the Miette and the Aisne, in the neighbourhood of Bezonvaux and at Eparges.

In Lorraine, in the Vosges, we brought in a certain number of prisoners.

Friday Night.

Our troops this morning counter-attacked the German lines from Villers-Bretonneux to south of the Luce, and succeeded, notwithstanding the desperate resistance of the enemy, who had brought up important forces to this point, in recapturing from him a notable part of the ground which he had gained yesterday.

We captured the monument to the south of Villers-Bretonneux into the Hangard-en-Santerre Wood, and conquered the western part of the village.

The battle, which has lasted all day, and still continues, has been of exceptional violence.

The Germans have attempted to wrest our gains from us at any cost, and notwithstanding the considerable losses which our fire inflicted upon them at every attempt.

In the northern part of Hangard Woods particularly they launched their battalions to the assault no fewer than seven times, without succeeding in making our valiant troops fall back.

The struggle was no less bitter in the village of Hangard, which twice changed hands.

On the southern bank of the Luce we also captured the orchard, which we have retained notwithstanding all the efforts of the enemy.

There was an intermittent cannonade on the right bank of the Meuse, and at the Hartmannsweilerkopf.

GERMAN OFFICIAL.

Friday.

The attack by the Army of General Superintendent von Arnim against Mount Kemmel led to a complete success. The height itself, looking far into the Flanders Plain, is in our possession. Yesterday morning, after strong artillery activity, the infantry of General Sirger and General von Eberhard broke forward to the attack. French divisions entrusted within the radius of the British troops with the defence of Mount Kemmel and the English troops adjoining them at Wytschaete and Dranoutre were thrown out of their positions. The large crater of St. Eloi and the place itself were captured.

The numerous concrete houses and fortified farms situated in the fighting area were captured.

Prussian and Bavarian troops took Mount Kemmel and the village by storm, under protection of artillery, which keeps up with our troops, in spite of the difficult terrain. The infantry pushed forward at many points as far as the Kemmel Brook.

We captured Dranoutre and the height to the north-west of Flengelhoek.

Battle squadrons attacked with great success the rear communication roads of the enemy, which were crowded with carts and columns.

As a result of yesterday's battle over 6,500 prisoners have been reported up to the present, the majority of whom are French. Amongst the prisoners are one English and one French regimental commander.

To the south of the Somme, Villers-Bretonneux, into which we had penetrated, could not be held, in the face of an enemy counter-attack. Further strong counter-attacks failed due east of the village, at the wood which we wrested from the enemy, and the village of Hangard. The number of prisoners taken in this battle area has increased to 2,400.

Between the Avre and the Oise, apart from the temporary reviving artillery fire, there is nothing of importance to report.

On the western bank of the Moselle, Saxon companies stormed the French trenches, and penetrated into Regnieville. After having accomplished their task, they returned to their lines with prisoners.

Friday Night.

Enemy counter-attacks against Mount Kemmel, and in the fighting area to the south of Villers-Bretonneux, failed with heavy losses.

LORD FRENCH IN CORK.

Field-Marshal Viscount French, who, with Lieutenant-General Sir Bryan Mahon, Commanding-in-Chief the Forces in Ireland, has been staying in Cork for a few days past, yesterday morning went to Fermoy, where he inspected the troops there and at Moore Park. Lord French subsequently returned to Cork, and in the evening dined with Major-General Doran at Government House. Sir Bryan Mahon left Cork yesterday.

ROYAL HIBERNIAN MILITARY SCHOOL.

The Lord Lieutenant has nominated the Earl of Meath, K.P., to be a member of the Corporation of the Royal Hibernian Military School for a further period of five years, from the 4th instant.

The long range gun again bombarded Paris on Thursday night, a shell falling on a shed near a factory. Only slight damage was done.

The Inter-Allied Naval Committee met yesterday morning at the Ministry of Marine in Paris, under the presidency of the French Minister of Marine, M. Leygues. France, Great Britain, U.S.A., Italy, and Japan were all represented.

THE SITUATION IN FLANDERS.

LOSS OF KEMMEL.

ITS STRATEGIC VALUE.

PROLONGED STRUGGLE EXPECTED.

In a review of the military situation, the Press Association points out that up to within the last few days German activities have been chiefly devoted to what is called the Lys sector between Givenchy and Merville. The net result may be described as highly satisfactory for us. The Germans put in a lot of troops; they had very heavy losses, and gained absolutely nothing. In particular, the fight around Givenchy was very satisfactory.

Further north and east of Robecq we gained a little ground, and took a considerable number of prisoners, the balance of losses being against the Germans.

Yesterday morning the enemy started a heavy attack on the Kemmel front, and there made considerable progress. Our latest information from the spot is not very complete. There is no doubt, however, that the Germans succeeded in occupying Kemmel Hill. The sector which the enemy selected for attack up there involved both the French and the British troops, and the net result was that the enemy gained about a couple of thousand yards on a front of about 1,200 yards, involving the very important ground of Kemmel Hill.

There is no question about it, says a high military authority, that that means a very serious loss. While there is nothing decisive about a position at present, still Kemmel Hill is a very important tactical feature. It is an isolated hill, covered with woods, which stand rather out in front and somewhat cut off from the main ridge of hills, which form a kind of backbone. Of course, it commands extremely important observation over all the ground to the north. While it is in German hands at present it remains to be seen how long it will continue to be so.

MENACE TO YPRES.

Our line to the north is all right. The question has been raised in some quarters as to whether, if the Germans remain on Kemmel Hill, it involves a retirement from Ypres. It is maintained in military circles, however, that it is perfectly possible to hold on at Ypres, even with the enemy on Kemmel. At the same time it is not pleasant, and we are in hopes of getting him off.

With respect to the southern attack the situation at Villers-Bretonneux is regarded by experts as very satisfactory. The British have got back all they lost. We hold Villers-Bretonneux village, we have inflicted heavy losses on the Germans, and taken a considerable number of prisoners. Villers-Bretonneux is also a most important tactical point because it is the top of the plateau from the western edge on which you look right down the slopes towards Amiens.

Looking at these two attacks we see this, that in each case the German has struck the junction of the French and British. That must always be rather a weak spot. With the best possible arrangements and the best understanding, it must always be more difficult to arrange for immediate support when two different commands are involved. These difficulties are naturally increased when you have two nationalities. It must be expected that the German will always try to find a joint of that nature in the harness.

HAMMER THE BRITISH ARMY.

Speaking generally as regards the German policy there is nothing to alter the view that it is the German intention to wear out the British Army. He has been unable to divide it, or break it from the French, so he is going on hammering at it wherever he can find it. That object is being countered by the Allied Commander-in-Chief, who has sent troops up to the north, which have now been engaged. Therefore, it will be more difficult for the Germans to keep on at the game at which they have been playing, which is, to fight the British Army by itself.

BIGGER OFFENSIVE EXPECTED.

There is no reason to alter the view that a big offensive on a far greater scale than either of these two attacks is still to be expected between Arras and Amiens.

So far, says a high military authority, the whole of the German success has been merely tactical, that is to say, the enemy has won ground, and driven us from certain positions and taken prisoners and guns, but he has achieved no change in the strategical situation. There is evidence to prove that he expected to do this within a fortnight, and now five weeks have elapsed since he began, so we must expect him to go on with this process, and we have to make up our minds that it is not this week or the next week, or next month, that this fight is going to be decided.

RESERVES WILL TELL IN THE END.

We are, says a military expert, going to fight the Germans the whole summer, and in the end it will be a question as to who holds the last reserves. Those reserves on the Western front are now in the hands of one Commander-in-Chief, the Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies in France, General Foch, in whom everybody in both Armies has complete confidence. He has so far employed only a small proportion of the reserves available, and that is a good augury for the future. The fact is emphasised in military quarters that we are confronted with a long drawn-out test of endurance of the nations. That being so it is imperative for this country and the Allies to get hold of every man they possibly can to support the battle front. That is what is going to tell in the end.

THE FIGHT FOR MONT KEMMEL.

Telegraphing yesterday, the Special Correspondent of the Press Association with the British Army in France says:—The brunt of the fighting to-day has been borne by the French, for the reason that the centre of hostile activity has been that sector of the common battle ground which they are holding. The German objective was told with perfect frankness by last night's Berlin official wireless, which said: "The army of General Sixt von Arnim is engaged in the battle for Mont Kemmel."

Yesterday this adversary of old Somme memory pressed his attack very hard, and came very near gaining a substantial tactical advantage; but the French offered a magnificent resistance to a great numerical superiority, and the enemy failed to attain a decisive result. Still, he got a substantial footing upon the commanding position of Kemmel Hill, and by throwing in further troops has tried to extend his gain. But this morning the French were attacking, and a furious battle still rages as I write. It is impossible as yet to learn any authentic details of the fighting.

Further north the Germans attacked this morning on a front extending from La Clytte to the Blub on the Ypres-Comines Canal, and here again the situation is confused. Indeed, as you may judge, it is very difficult to follow the course of these diffused struggles in any sort of detail whilst they are actually in progress, and one has to await the issue before being able to report what really happened.

By successfully fighting in the gap at La Clytte this morning we completed the restoration of our line. Eastwards of Villers Brettonneux, from the monument which stands just south-east of this village to opposite Hangard, British and French troops launched an attack this morning. Such news as has come back thus far is to the effect that the operation has made some progress; but what I have just said regarding the fighting now going on in the north applies equally in this case.

SOUTHERN UNIONISTS AND UNITY.

Letter from Sir Maurice Dockrell.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The Molesworth Hall meeting of Southern Unionists held last year did me the honour of selecting me as one of a committee to elect delegates to the Convention. I resigned my connection with this committee, and also with the Unionist Alliance, for reasons which were personal (not political), and are now ancient history. To have given any public explanations at the time might have produced disunion, and would probably have been regarded as a distinct disservice. My present purpose is to help to promote union. A meeting of the Unionist Alliance is, I understand, summoned for next week to consider the action of the Convention delegates. I am not now a member of the Alliance, and will not, therefore, be present, and will not be called upon to offer any opinion upon the action of the delegates. Supposing, however, the view to be held that their decision was a counsel of despair, surely many stalwarts would have succumbed to an atmosphere of such "sweet reasonableness" and "mutual accommodation." I, for one must own that, had the fates decreed me one of the delegates, while I would have "fought my corner" as a life-long Unionist, I would, no doubt, have acted as the Alliance delegates did. On the other hand, those who have issued "the Call" have, in my opinion, acted as a brake upon the wheel that is driving forward panic legislation. They are contemptuously spoken of as "die-hards," but in a fairly long experience of life I have much more often heard a "die-soft" spoken of in terms of contempt.

But a truce to these puerilities. The vastly important issues which are confronting the Unionists of Ireland, and especially the Southern Unionists, drastically demand that all divisions in our ranks should cease. Ulster may be trusted to take care of herself; we only number a few hundreds of thousands. Is "Divide and conquer" to be our epitaph?—Yours, etc.,

MAURICE DOCKRELL.

Dublin, April 26th, 1918.

GERMANY AND HOLLAND.

SITUATION STILL GRAVE.

When the Second Chamber met yesterday, says a Reuter's telegram from the Hague, M. Savornin Lohmann referred to the serious declaration made on Thursday by the Foreign Minister, Jonkheer Loudon, in the First Chamber, and to a serious rumour since circulated. The speaker said he would be glad if the Foreign Minister would make a statement on the situation.

The Foreign Minister made the following declaration:—The Chamber is aware that difficulties have arisen with Germany in connection with the sand and gravel question. The discussions are not taking a definitely unfavourable course, but the Government does not disguise from itself the seriousness of the situation. Regarding supplies of food from America, the Government would agree to an exchange of ships as soon as absolute certainty existed that the matter was in order on the other side of the Atlantic.

On the motion of ten members the Chamber then went into secret session.

M. Cort van der Linden, the Premier, and Jonkheer Loudon, Minister for Foreign Affairs, conferred yesterday with the leaders of the political parties in the Second Chamber in order to explain to them the difficulties that have arisen with Germany.

According to a Berlin telegram to the Dutch Press, the Tageblatt thinks that at the meeting of the Dutch Cabinet Germany's conditions will be accepted, and that an agreement can then be concluded.

The Vaderland understands that the German standpoint in regard to the sand and gravel question is as follows:—According to treaties Germany has the right to this transit, and she insists that Holland shall not prevent it. Even if Holland does not admit the right, Germany demands that she shall not be treated different from the Entente. In regard to the Entente, which has taken Holland's ships whereby immeasurable damage has been inflicted on Germany and her Allies, Holland contents herself with a protest. Let her then be contented with a protest regarding the transit which Germany desires, and which, even assuming that it infringes Holland's neutrality is far from infringing it as done by the use of her ships for transport.

The German Minister, Dr. Rosen, has told one of the leading Dutch Deputies that the differences between Holland and Germany are practically settled.

THREATS TO HOLLAND.

Writing in the Vossische Zeitung on Thursday, Captain von Salzmann seizes upon the British attack upon Zeebrugge to impute evil intentions to Great Britain regarding Holland, and finally addresses threats to Holland herself. He says:—Holland can by determined neutrality still keep outside the war. The decision still lies with Holland herself. Holland must realise clearly, however, that there is an end even to hard-tried German patience. The German Empire has to put up with much in this war. When vital questions and Germany's very existence are at stake, however, there can be no hesitation. Let Holland reflect on that in these critical hours. Our policy also in this respect cannot deviate. There is no way out.

ACTION BY DUTCH MILITARY COMMANDER.

Regular leave and leave for special purposes have now been provisionally stopped by the Dutch Commander-in-Chief of Land and Sea Forces.

THE ZEEBRUGGE AFFAIR.

A GERMAN TRIBUTE TO BRITISH DARING.

In contradiction of the report from London regarding the British attack on Zeebrugge, an official statement is issued in Berlin (says a Press Association Amsterdam telegram) culminating in the declaration that, beyond the unimportant destruction on the viaduct connecting the Mole with the shore, not the slightest result has been achieved. According to this statement the whole harbour installation at Zeebrugge is entirely undamaged. A tribute is, however, paid in passing to the seamanship of the commander of the Vindictive: Of the men who got on the Mole about twelve and one captain were taken prisoners. It is admitted that the British may justly be praised for their spirit of bravery and enterprise.

WORK OF THE MEDICAL STAFF.

The Press Association learns on high authority some interesting facts relating to the services rendered by naval medical men on the occasion of the recent raid on Zeebrugge and Ostend. Most of the casualties took place before the Vindictive got alongside the Mole, and were dealt with by the medical officers aboard the attacking vessel. They were working in the darkness in a crowded ship, but they were specially trained surgeons, and they had volunteered for the work. In the confusion they became scattered, but each surgeon made himself responsible for the wounded around him, and the cases were dealt with instantly. There were two hospital trains at Dover, where the wounded were transhipped and sent to Deal and Chatham. By 6 p.m. the whole of the wounded had received attention. Four of the naval medical officers from the Vindictive actually landed on the Mole. Their stretcher-bearers were mostly wounded or killed. A preparation had been made for using in the treatment of burns. It consisted of a paraffin wax spray invented by Dr. Berthe de Sandfort, formerly of the French Navy, now medical officer serving in the French Army. It is best adapted to the treatment of injuries from flame-throwers. Prepared paraffin wax is sprayed on a thin layer of cotton wool and forms a coating, which excludes air.

ADMIRALTY TRIBUTE.

The Secretary of the Admiralty announces the issue of the following General Order to the Fleet, April 26:—Their lordships desire to express to all ranks and ratings concerned in the recent gallant and successful enterprise on the Belgian coast their high admiration of the perfect co-operation displayed and of the single-minded determination of all to achieve their object. The disciplined daring, and singular contempt of death exhibited by the men who were assigned the post of greatest danger places this exploit high in the annals of the Royal Navy and Royal Marines, and will be a proud memory for the relatives of those who fell.

IRISH MISSIONARY'S DEATH IN CHINA

REV. H. E. C. GRAHAM SHOT BY PIRATES.

A cable from Foochow, China, dated April 18th, just received by the Church Missionary Society, announces the death, at the hands of pirates, of the Rev. H. E. C. Graham, M.A., a member of the Dublin University Fuh-Kien Mission. Beyond the fact that he was shot, and that death was instantaneous, no details are known. Mr. Graham had nearly completed his first term of service, having gone to China in 1911, and was due for furlough to the home country. This is the second C.M.S. missionary who has been murdered within about a month, Dr. V. H. Starr having been stabbed at Peshawar.

Rev. H. Edwin Colles Graham graduated in Trinity College, and was ordained in 1908. He afterwards served for about three years as Curate in Rathfarnham Parish, County Dublin. He then accepted an appointment to the mission field in connection with Dublin University Fuh-Kien Mission, and his labours in the Fuh-Ning district of the Province of Fuh-Kien were carried out with energy and appreciable success. His death at the hands of pirates on the eve of his return on furlough to Ireland is deeply regretted by members of the University Mission and other friends of missionary effort in China. His father, Mr. Christopher Graham, who resides at 34 Waterloo road, Dublin, is also a graduate of Trinity College, a distinguished mathematician, and for some time a Fellow of one of the Cambridge Colleges.

THE BLACK PIG OF KILTRUSTAN.

A COUNTY ROSCOMMON "APPARITION."

Our Tulsk (Co. Roscommon) correspondent writes as follows:—A strange apparition has appeared at Kiltrustan, near Strokestown, in the shape of a black pig. Two little girls saw the pig, but, strange to say, none of the older people can see it. A clergyman visited the place, but could see nothing, although the little girls could see it, and they pointed out to him where the pig was standing. The apparition has caused tremendous excitement in the district, where the people believe that this is the "black pig" spoken of in the prophecy of Columcille. Crowds, full of awe, are visiting the place, and the children of the parish are in a state of terror. Two men who cut a tree on an old rath or fort are ill, and many attribute their illness to the appearance of the pig.

In a later message our correspondent says—The scare over the apparition of the "black pig" at Kiltrustan is growing, and hundreds are visiting the place daily, but none can see the pig but the two little girls who first saw it, and a companion. These three children see the pig every day at the same place, and several clergymen have visited the scene. The children are all scared around the place from going to school, and the whole thing remains a mystery.

EAST CAVAN ELECTION.

NATIONALIST CANDIDATE SELECTED.

Our Bailieborough Correspondent telegraphed last night:—Mr. John F. O'Hanlon, Cavan Urban Council, was unanimously selected as the Nationalist candidate for East Cavan at a Convention held in the Bailieborough Town Hall for that purpose. Mr. James Connery, Chairman of the East Cavan Executive of the United Irish League, presided, and delegates were present from thirty-nine branches of the League and divisions of the A.O.H.

Mr. O'Hanlon, on being informed of his selection, said that under ordinary circumstances and in normal times his unanimous selection by the Nationalists of East Cavan would arouse in him feelings of pride and thanks; but the times were not normal. A few days ago, in face of the imposition of a blood tax upon the people, they pledged themselves to one another—Leaguer and Sinn Feiner, Hibernian and Forester—to stand together. But what had happened? The pledge of unity, solemnly administered and solemnly signed, was scattered to the winds within a few hours, and Mr. Arthur Griffith was selected as a candidate. He made this offer—if Mr. Griffith would withdraw from the contest and allow the Lord Mayor of Dublin to be returned unopposed, he, too, would withdraw. Let this offer stand good until Monday. Should this offer be turned down, then he would, without another moment's consideration, tread on the tail of Mr. Griffith's coat.

Mr. O'Hanlon's election address will be found in our advertising columns. His main planks are the unity of the people, the fostering of and improvement of agriculture, and improvements in the towns.

MR. JOHN DILLON AND PARLIAMENT.

WHEN THE PARTY MAY RETURN.

Mr. John Dillon, M.P., has forwarded a reply to the resolution of the Cashel Board of Guardians, which entered their strongest protest against any effort of the British Government to enforce conscription on Ireland. The resolution also called upon the Irish Party "to give close attention to Parliament during the remaining period of the war, and to lose no opportunity that offers there, by voice and action, to expose to the world, and to Britain's Allies, the hypocrisy of Great Britain in declaring to the world that her object in the present war is to secure to small nations the blessings of free self-determination, which she has ever with-held, and continues to deny to the small nation at her door, that has ever protested against British rule, and claimed the right of self-government."

The following is Mr. Dillon's reply:—

2 North Great George's street, Dublin,
22nd April, 1918.

Dear Mr. Phelan,—I have received your letter of the 12th April and copy of resolution enclosed. Please assure the Cashel Guardians that the suggestions contained in their resolution will have my best attention. For the present I am of opinion that the proper place for members of the Irish Party is with their people to give all the assistance in their power in the great struggle that is before us; but circumstances may arise at any moment which may make it essential to do what is suggested in the second resolution—i.e., return to Parliament, and expose to the world through the only channel that would be then available the brutalities which will inevitably be committed should the Government persist in the mad course on which they have entered.

THE ANTI-CONSCRIPTION AGITATION.

The Ard Chomhairle of Sinn Fein met yesterday at the Mansion House, Dublin, at 11 a.m., Mr. E. de Valera presiding. The chief matter under discussion (the official report states) was the menace of conscription. It was very strongly felt that if any confidence prevailed in any parts of the country that the menace had been averted, people sharing such an opinion regarded the situation very shortsightedly. The English Government, having passed the Act, were now committed to its effective application, and would only wait for such a feeling of confidence to thrust the Act into force on an unprepared people. Arrangements for the defence of the people were fully and minutely discussed, the position being viewed in all its aspects, and important decisions were arrived at. The results of these are to be communicated to the various Sinn Fein Executives through the country, and through them to Sinn Fein Clubs. A strong resolution was adopted in condemnation of the deportation of Mr. Diarmuid Lynch.

LIMERICK CORPORATION AND LORD DUNRAVEN.

At the meeting of the Limerick Corporation on Thursday night, the Mayor (Mr. A. M. O'Mara) in the chair, Councillor M. Griffin said some years ago the freedom of the city had been voted to Lord Dunraven. Having regard to his lordship's recent action regarding conscription, he did not think there was any justification for Lord Dunraven's name remaining on the roll, and he accordingly handed in a notice of motion to have his lordship's name deleted from the roll of freemen. He never thought his lordship would turn on his fellow-countrymen, and try to enforce a blood tax on them. The Town Clerk (Mr. Wm. M. Nolan, J.P.) said that the notice would be taken into consideration at the next meeting.

MEETING OF MAYO MAGISTRATES.

A meeting of the magistrates representative of the districts of Ballyhaunis, Claremorris, Ballindine, and Kilkelly, all in South Mayo, was held yesterday in the Court House, Ballyhaunis, for the purpose of entering a protest against the application of compulsory military service to Ireland, in compliance with the circular issued by Dr. Charles E. Crean, J.P., Ballyhaunis. Five magistrates attended and apologies were read from five others. Dr. Crean presided, and a resolution was passed in the form of an appeal to the Lord Lieutenant to use his influence with the Government to withhold the application to Ireland of the Military Service Act. It was signed by C. E. Crean (in the chair), Chas. G. Triston, James Connell, Patrick Lyons, Austin Freely, Edward P. Irwin.

AN ANTI-CONSCRIPTION CLUB.

An anti-conscription club of men of military age has been formed at Kiltoom, Athlone. Several hundred men have joined.

ARMS AND AMMUNITION SEIZED.

As a precautionary measure, the police have taken over from the hardware merchants in Pomeroy, County Tyrone, about 4,000 rounds of ammunition and six shot guns, and removed them to Dungannon Barracks. Similar stocks in Dungannon have also been removed to safe custody.

Yesterday the Moate police seized £20 worth of cartridges and gunshot at an establishment there, and handed them over to the military authorities.

POLICE INSPECTOR ASSAULTED.

An exciting scene took place in Whitehall street, Clones, on Thursday night, when District Inspector M. J. Egan, R.I.C., was attacked by some members of a crowd who had been in the fair that day, and remained about the town until a late hour. It appears that Mr. Egan was on his way home about 10.30 from the police barracks, and when passing through Whitehall street met a noisy crowd. On seeing Mr. Egan, who was in uniform, they are alleged to have used insulting and disloyal expressions, and some of them approached and struck him. Mr. Egan returned to the barracks for reinforcements, and some policemen started in pursuit. When they overtook some men a scuffle took place, Mr. Egan and a constable being assaulted. Two men were arrested. After the assault on the District Inspector some of the military were called out, and lined up in front of the police barrack for some time.

MR. WALTER KAVANAGH'S VIEW.

At a special meeting on Tuesday, the Carlow County Council passed a resolution of protest against the application of conscription to Ireland. The Right Hon. Walter Kavanagh (Chairman), who presided, voted against the resolution. In speaking to it, he said:—I must differ from you in this matter. I agree that in the face of the strong attitude which this country has taken up against conscription it would be most undesirable, nay impossible, for the Government to enforce it. But I think we ought not to have adopted that attitude. We ought to have taken our full share in this war, and backed up our fellow-countrymen who have done so, and are now fighting for us at the front. Let us ask ourselves this question—What position did Ireland take up at the beginning of the war? Did we, or did we not, enter into this war? I will tell you. At the outbreak of the war the late Mr. Redmond made that memorable speech in the House of Commons in August, 1914, and in the name of Nationalist Ireland threw in his lot into this war, and declared that it was our war just as much as it was England's war. And the whole of Ireland, without one dissenting voice, endorsed that declaration. Following that speech Ireland, Nationalist as well as Unionist, made a splendid response to the call of duty. Nothing could have been finer than the way our young men flocked to the Colours during that first year of the war; nothing more splendid than their record as soldiers, their courage, their endurance, their loyalty to the cause. But there comes a time in every country that goes to war when the voluntary element becomes exhausted, and when, if the war goes on, and more men are required to win it, conscription is the inevitable result. That time came to England and to every country engaged in this war. I am not going to call those of my fellow-countrymen who did not volunteer in the war cowards or even slackers or shirkers. The majority of them are neither one nor the other. But there is a very large class who are represented by this feeling—"I will not go unless my neighbour goes. If he goes I will go, but not otherwise." That is where the duty and responsibility of the Government comes in. As the Government decided, and rightly so, to enter into this war, so it ought to decide every question relating to the war. I don't believe in a referendum or anything of that kind during war time. It was the duty of the Government to make up the minds of these young men, and to tell them and their neighbours that they ought to go. Then, I believe, they would have gone willingly. It is the Irish soldiers at the front, our fellow-countrymen, just as much as the Government, who are asking for more men to be sent to help them. Thousands of Irishmen are fighting for us in France and elsewhere—fighting against the common enemy, fighting to keep the Germans from us and our homes, and sending an appeal to us here at home to come and help them. Let me put it to you in this way—Suppose that I had been of military age, and had joined the Army at the beginning of the war, as I would have done if I had been a few years younger—suppose I were at the front now, and that I sent a message back to you here now in this room telling you that I was in danger and difficulty, asking for your assistance, appealing to you, for Ireland's sake and friendship sake, to come out and help me would you not come? That is what is happening to-day. Our Irish soldiers are in great difficulty and danger. They are appealing to us for help, and we are only asked to let the Government make up the minds of these young men at home, and they would then go gladly, willingly, if you by your resolutions told them that they ought to go.

IMPORTANT PROPOSALS.

QUESTION OF ALIEN HOLDINGS.

COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

The final report was issued last night of the Lord Balfour of Burleigh Committee on Commercial and Industrial Policy After the War, which was appointed by Mr. Asquith in July, 1916.

Owing to the inability of the Committee on Shipping and Shipbuilding to complete its labours, the report does not deal with the question of shipping policy after the war, but it observes that, in view of the shortage of the world's tonnage, whilst it may be desirable to impose for a limited period some restriction on the use of British ports by present enemy shipping, any policy which might tend to check the use of our ports by foreign shipping generally would, in the Committee's opinion, be inexpedient.

In accordance with the terms of reference, the Committee's report is founded mainly upon the resolutions of the Paris Economic Conference, and, declaring at the outset that they attach great importance to Resolution B1 being carried out in its widest sense, the Committee express the opinion that the rapid reconstruction of industry and of our mercantile marine will depend largely on the extent to which reparation is exacted in kind from enemy countries, and this should be done as fully as may be practicable.

Regarding the supply of raw materials, the Committee do not think that any attempt to make the Empire self-supporting in respect of them all would be either practicable or economically sound, but that a selective policy will be necessary which shall have regard to the relative importance, whether industrial or military, and to the sources of supply, and the likelihood of their disturbance in time of war. The Committee do not think that the establishment of a single Development Board to deal with this problem, and certain matters, as recommended by the Dominion's Royal Commission, is immediately practicable, and they think it would be possible to make more rapid progress by dealing separately with a number of commodities or groups of commodities.

ALIEN INTERESTS.

As regards alien interests in sources of supply within the Empire, the Committee think that some Government control, which may take various forms according to the circumstances of each case, will be necessary in future in respect of a limited number of commodities of vital military importance. Apart from this limited class of cases, the Committee think it would be unwise to aim at the exclusion of foreign (other than present enemy) capital from sharing in the development of the material resources of the Empire.

The Committee recommend legislative powers to secure complete disclosure as far as practicable of the extent of foreign holding in any particular case; that mineral and other properties are not secured by foreign concerns in order to prevent the development of those properties, and to check competition in supply, and that in the case of commodities of great Imperial importance the local Government concerned should have some measure of control over the working of the properties. These principles, if accepted by the Government, should be brought under the consideration of the Governments of other parts of the Empire with a view to the adoption of a uniform policy.

The Committee are of opinion that it would be undesirable to impose any special restrictions on the participation of aliens generally in commercial and industrial occupation in this country. In a limited number of cases where safeguards may be necessary adequate security can be ensured by requiring a disclosure of the facts. A few occupations, such as pilot and patent agent, however, should be confined to British-born subjects, and the question of the registration of foreign commercial travellers operating here should be considered.

While not supporting the proposal that every limited company should disclose alien holdings, the Committee recommend that the Board of Trade should have power of investigation in suspicious cases. They think that a policy of checking the establishment or continuance of foreign banking and insurance agencies or branches would be unwise, but suggest the licensing of same, the lodging of deposit by foreign insurance companies, and measures to secure that foreign banks do not evade payment of British income tax.

The Committee consider that for a period after the war special restrictions on enemy subjects will be necessary by means of stringent permit and police regulations. Subject to these safeguards, the Committee do not think it necessary or practicable, except possibly for a short period in special cases, to prevent present enemy subjects from establishing agencies or holding interests in commercial or industrial undertakings.

On the question of industrial and commercial organisation, the Committee recognise that the formation of organisations for marketing, in respect of overseas trade, will stimulate the creation of combinations for the control of domestic sales. They believe, however, that such development is not only desirable in some cases, but practically inevitable, under modern conditions, and that public opinion, hitherto antagonistic, must be modified. They consider, moreover, that, far from being adverse to the interests of labour, combinations of employers are on the whole beneficial to the workers in the trade affected. Whilst against positive Government control of combinations, the Committee suggest means for securing to the Board of Trade adequate information as to the formation of combinations and State investigation in special cases.

The Committee are against the establishment of an Imperial Bank of Industry, considering private banking enterprise preferable to a State-controlled institution; and, as a general rule, they think it undesirable for the State to provide capital for industrial purposes.

FISCAL POLICY.

Upon reconsideration of fiscal policy in the light of the experience of war, the Committee lay down the following proposition as to the basis of future British economic policy:—Government action to promote and safeguard the development of industries of a special or pivotal character, and assistance to other industries important for the maintenance of the industrial position of the United Kingdom; a serious attempt to meet the declared wishes of the Dominions, the Colonies, and India for readjustment and development of their economic relations with the United Kingdom; an effort to develop trade between the British Empire and our Allies, subject to an agreement with our Allies that present enemy countries are not, for a time at least, to be allowed to carry on trade with the British Empire in the same unrestricted manner as before the war, or on terms equal to those accorded to our Allies or neutrals.

As a protection against the dumping of sweated goods, the Committee recommended action on the lines adopted in Canada. The key or pivotal industries should be maintained at all hazards and at any expense, and as regards other industries, protection by Customs duties or Government assistance in other forms should be afforded only to carefully selected branches of industry.

Preferential treatment should be accorded to British oversea Dominions and possessions in respect of any Customs duties now or hereafter to be imposed in the United Kingdom, and consideration should be given to other forms of Imperial preference. Before recommending a tariff protection to any industry, a special Board should consider forms of State assistance other than, or concurrent with, protective duties.

Several members append notes of reservations.

The Committee are against the metric system and the decimal system of coinage. In an interim report presented in November, 1916, and also issued last night, the Committee recommended that the importation of goods of enemy origin should, subject to licence in exceptional cases, be prohibited for at least twelve months after the war. Lord Rhondda, Sir Joseph Manlay, and Mr. Arthur Pease held that the Government should determine the period.

IRELAND'S POSITION.

In a memorandum to the report, Mr. J. O'Neill regrets that he must express his dissent with the form of the final report and some of the recommendations therein, both in their trend generally and in relation to their effect on Irish trade particularly.

Generally—Sufficient information was not placed before the Committee as to the intentions of our Allies to enable the Committee to consider their views as to a closer commercial union between the United Kingdom and them.

Education—In his opinion, our ability to recover our pre-war trade and extend it will depend very largely on a radical change in our present educational systems, both technical and commercial. The Committee did not consider this vital question.

The word British—The use of the word British in the final report is most ambiguous, and must lead to a certain amount of confusion.

Industrial and Commercial Organisations—Mr. O'Neill disagrees with the recommendation made, and is of opinion that these powerful combinations, backed by State approval and assistance, will operate in such a manner as to destroy many of the weak and isolated industries now existing in Ireland.

The Fiscal System—Whilst endeavouring to avoid matters of political controversy, he contends that, owing to the difference in the economic structure of the two Kingdoms, no fiscal system framed for the protection of the trade of Great Britain can fail to press unfairly on Irish industries. For instance, steel, iron, etc., must be classed in Ireland as raw materials. Again, certain machinery, machine tools, electric motors, etc., which are essential for their industries, must be free from all tariff. Therefore his definition of raw material is: "Any article, manufactured or unmanufactured, which does not compete with our existing or potential industries." Generally, he claimed for Irish manufacturers freedom of trade in its broadest sense.

Irish Minerals—The geological survey of Ireland is dumped on the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction. Whilst this Department may be most anxious to carry on the work, they have neither the funds nor the staff to deal efficiently with the mineral survey of Ireland.

SPECIAL EXTRA.

IRISH CHIEF SECRETARY.

There is reason to believe, writes the Political Correspondent of the Daily Mail, that Mr. Duke will be succeeded, as Chief Secretary for Ireland, by another K.C. The position has been offered to Mr. Edward Shortt, the Recorder of Sunderland, and senior member for Newcastle-on-Tyne. Mr. Shortt has been highly successful as Chairman of Committees in the House of Commons, and the bold and impartial line he took when inquiring into the Medical Board scandals under the Review of Exceptions Act called forth general commendation. He is 56 years of age. His only son, Lieutenant W. E. Dudley Shortt, of the Scots Guards, was killed in action last year.

SITUATION AT THE FRONT.

Mr. Philip Gibbs, Special Correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, says—The situation in Franders is still serious, and the enemy may endeavour to exploit his advance at Kemmel by a great concentration of strength, and more violent attacks. But the French Army, as well as ours, is now barring his way, and all our men have intense confidence in the superb regiments of France who are now fighting with us.

If we have to admit the loss of Kemmel Hill, writes Colonel Repington, Military Correspondent of the Morning Post, the next height to the westward is Mont Rouge, where the enemy should be held up until affairs in the Ypres sector are straightened out. In the Kemmel fight all the German divisions noticed at Neuve Eglise again figured, and with them a new arrival, the 56th Division.

LORD SETTRINGTON A PRISONER

Information has been received (says The Times) that Lieutenant Lord Settrington, Irish Guards, reported missing on April 13th, is a prisoner in Germany. He was born in 1899, and is the elder son of the Earl and Countess of March and heir presumptive, after his father, to the Dukedom of Richmond and Gordon.

"HEADS UP."

We have reached another crisis in the great battle, says the London Daily Express. It has now, indeed, become clear that this greatest of all world struggles will move from crisis to crisis. We are faced with a certainty of months of anxiety. It is vital that the nation should be ready to accept bad news and anxious days with undiminished faith and unbroken spirit. Pessimism as to the ultimate issue is ridiculous while the British Navy holds the sea. There is every reason to believe, indeed, that the great German onslaught in France, despite any temporary successes, will result in disaster to the enemy.

IRISH RIFLES.

The order issued by General Sir Bryan Mahon prohibiting persons in certain specified districts in Ireland from carrying or keeping firearms, is certainly a step in the right direction, declares the London Daily Express. A more efficacious method, however, would have been for the Government to have offered a good round sum for every weapon deposited at a certain spot by a particular date. The offer would, I am told by many living in Ireland, have been gladly, though secretly, accepted.

WASHINGTON CONFERENCE AND IRISH CONSCRIPTION.

The problem of Irish conscription was discussed, says a Reuter message from Washington, at a conference attended by Lord Reading and Mr. T. P. O'Connor. Mr. O'Connor pressed a proposal that the question of raising Irish armies be left to the Irish Parliament created under the Home Rule Act.

THE AIR FORCE ACT.

AN IRISH BILLETING ORDER.

An Order from the Lord Lieutenant made under the Air Force Act was published in last night's Dublin Gazette. The Act, amongst other things, enacts that where directions have been given for embodying all or any part of the Territorial Force it shall be lawful for the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland by Order distinctly stating that a case of emergency exists and signified by the Chief Secretary or Under-Secretary for Ireland to authorise any General or Field Officer Commanding any part of His Majesty's Air Force in any Air Force Area or place in Ireland to issue a Billeting Requisition under his hand requiring Chief Officers of Police to provide billets in such places in Ireland and for such number of officers and airmen and their horses and for such period as may be specified in the requisition. The Order goes on to say that whereas directions have been given for embodying all of the Territorial Force, and whereas a case of emergency exists within the meaning of the said Act, the Lord Lieutenant is pleased to order and authorise any General or Field Officer Commanding any part of His Majesty's Air Force in any Air Force Area or place in Ireland to issue Billeting Requisitions under the said Act.

NATIONAL EDUCATION, IRELAND.

The fortnightly meeting of the Board of National Education was held on Tuesday. The following Commissioners were present:—

Sir Henry Bellingham, Bart.; Right Hon. W. J. M. Starkie, Resident Commissioner; Lord Killanin, Richard Bagwell, M.A.; David M. Moriarty, B.A.; John A. McClelland, M.A.; Right Rev. Maurice Day, Bishop of Clogher; Very Rev. Robert Miller, Dean of Waterford; Robert Donovan, B.A.; William E. Thrift, M.A.; Denis Holland, J.P., and the Rev. James Bingham, M.A., with W. J. Dilworth, M.A., Secretary, in attendance.

The Commissioners had before them a report of conferences which had taken place between representatives of the managers of evening schools in Dublin and certain officials of the Board. The recommendations made in the report were adopted, and the Commissioners hope to obtain authority for giving effect to the modifications in the rules which have been suggested.

Some modifications in the syllabuses in English, History, and Grammar were made, and it was decided to add to the topics suggested for nature study in the Notes for Teachers lessons on common plants used in medicine, their habits, collection, and cultivation.

Mr. G. Gilbert, architect, and Mr. Philip Connard, painter, have been elected Associates of the Royal Academy.

The slight improvement in the condition of Lady Jellicoe, which commenced on Thursday, is being maintained.

As the result of a collision between two aeroplanes attached to an aerodrome in a South-Eastern district three airmen were killed on Thursday.

The King has been pleased to appoint Honorary General the King of Siam to be Honorary K.G.C. of the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.

The London Gazette last night announces that the King has been pleased to appoint Lady Joan Mulholland Lady-in-Waiting to Her Royal Highness Princess Mary.

At the Central Criminal Court, London, yesterday, Private David Greenwood (21) was sentenced to death for the murder of a sixteen-year-old girl on Eltham Common. Accused denied his guilt, and asked the Judge not to take any notice of the jury's recommendation to mercy.

Yesterday the question whether death by an air raid could be considered an accident within the meaning of the Workmen's Compensation Act came before the Court of Appeal, London, who decided that the risk of death by enemy bombs was common to all, and that, therefore, it was impossible to say if the dependent of the victim was entitled to compensation.

Mr. Asquith, presiding at the annual meeting of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution in London yesterday, said that the men who would in normal conditions have manned and equipped, and in some cases commanded, lifeboats had had to go into trawlers and drifters, which in the last two days had played such a magnificent part in our naval operations.

ROLL OF HONOUR

Last night's casualty lists show the following losses:—Officers—Dead, 68; wounded or missing, 358. Rank and file—Dead, 509; wounded or missing, 2,492. Major C. S. Lyon.—Major Claude Stuart Lyon, M.C. (and bar), R.F.A., killed on March 21, was the son of the late James Lyon, M.A., Professor of Engineering at the Royal College of Science, Dublin. He was distinguished from a boy for his great personal strength and courage, and when only 16 received the bronze medal of the Royal Humane Society for saving life. He went to the front in 1914, and saw service in Salonika and France, where he was killed. He was awarded the M.C. on November 14, 1916, for carrying and delivering a message under intense fire. On the way he was buried by the bursting of a shell, but by great courage and determination extricated himself. A bar to his M.C. was added on August 27, 1917, when he descended into a telephone pit, with a sergeant and two bombardiers, and endeavoured to rescue the inmates. Although twice overcome by gas, he only abandoned the attempt when it was found that the occupants were dead. An officer writes:—"His personal example was of the highest value, and his constant cheerfulness through weeks of persistent shelling acted wonderfully on the spirits of all ranks." Major Lyon leaves a widow and a little son.

Major H. P. B. Gough.—The death, on April 22nd, at a casualty clearing station, from wounds received in action on the 13th inst., is announced of Major Harry P. B. Gough, M.C., the Welsh Regiment.

Captain L. W. L. Leader.—Information has been received that Lieutenant L. W. L. Leader, Connaught Rangers (Acting Captain, Inniskillings), is a prisoner at Karlsruhe. He was missing since the 21st March, and was first reported wounded and prisoner, but is reported "now well." He was in the Dublin University O.T.C., and on August 5th, 1914, applied for a S.R. commission, which he obtained in November of the same year, and was employed as Instructor of Musketry. He went to the front in July, 1916, and was severely wounded at Ginchy on September 9th. He went out again in September, 1917. He is the son of the Rev. L. L. Leader, of Stake Hill, Clonbanin, Co. Cork (at present acting as curate of Killabban, Queen's County), and is aged nearly 23. He was gazetted to the Regular Army on November 7th, 1917. His sister is a V.A.D. nurse in Cheltenham, and his brother, aged 18, is an officer in the P. and O. service.

Captain G. R. Barton.—Captain George Rawdon Barton, Cheshire Regiment, was killed in action on the 10th inst. He was the son of Mrs. Barton, of Farndreg, Dundalk, County Louth.

Captain H. G. Massy-Miles.—Captain Henry Godfrey Massy-Miles, R.A.M.C., died on April the 26th from gas poisoning. He was 32 years of age, and the eldest son of the Rev. Canon J. H. Miles.

Captain C. B. Despard.—Captain C. B. Despard, M.C., died, on the 18th inst., from wounds received in action. He served in the Boer War, and was in Canada when the present war broke out. He came home and received a commission in the Inniskilling Dragoons, being later transferred to the Royal Irish Fusiliers. Captain Despard was awarded the Military Cross three months ago for gallantly rescuing a wounded officer from No Man's Land, and had been engaged almost continuously since the beginning of the present great offensive. He was the youngest son of the late Mr. W. H. Despard, Malone Park, Belfast.

Lieutenant F. G. Brien.—Lieutenant Frederick George Brien, who was killed in action on the 20th inst., was the youngest son of the late Mr. John W. Brien, and of Mrs. Brien, of Wilton House, Dublin. He was a graduate of Dublin University, and one of the directors of Lambert, Brien, and Co., of Grafton street, Dublin. He was a well-known rifle shot, and was holder of the Dalkey Rifle Club Challenge Shield for the four successive years previous to the war. He was also winner of many competitions at the Irish National Rifle Association's meetings, and represented Ireland at Bisley in the competition for the Elcho Shield on two occasions. On the declaration of war he volunteered for service, and was wounded in June, 1916, when serving with the Inniskilling Fusiliers. In April, 1917, he was transferred to the R.F.A. He served for six months in the Trench Mortar Battery in Northern Italy, and only returned to the Western Front at the beginning of the present month. His commanding officer, in a letter to his mother, says:—"A shell unfortunately hit the house in which he and two other officers were staying, killing your son, a gunner, and badly injuring four other men." He adds:—"Absolutely the best officer I had under me. I deplore his loss, which is a loss that cannot be made up."

Lieutenant P. A. Gamble.—Lieutenant Percy A. Gamble, Northumberland Fusiliers, son of Mrs. Gamble, of Sutton, Co. Dublin, who was officially reported missing since 21st ult., has now been reported officially as a prisoner of war in Germany.

Second Lieutenant W. Hodge.—Second Lieutenant Wilfred Hodge, Royal Flying Corps, the son of the late Mr. William R. Hodge, Cabragh, Dungannon, died on April 24th at the Eastern Hospital, Cambridge.

Second Lieutenant H. M. Hamilton.—Second Lieutenant Hector M. Hamilton, youngest son of Mr. D. Hamilton, V.S., Ballina, was killed in action on 22nd March. He was educated at Sligo Grammar School, entered Trinity College, June, 1917; joined the University O.T.C., finished his training at Moore Park, from which he got a commission in the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers. He went to France at the end of October last, and was through the Cambrai battle. His elder brother was killed on 16th August, 1917, and his eldest brother was wounded in the previous January.

Mr. William Roe.—Mr. Peter Roe, Ballykelly, Roscrea, has received a postcard from Limburg, Germany, from his son, William Roe, S.I.H. (attached Royal Irish Regiment), stating that he is a prisoner of war, and unwounded.

Mr. W. G. Milne.—Mr. Milne, of Kilmore Lodge, Artane, Co. Dublin, has received a card from his eldest son, Private W. G. Milne, Royal Munster Fusiliers, late R.D.F., stating that he is a prisoner of war in Limburg.

CROWN PROSECUTORS AND THE LAW.

LETTER FROM MR. SERJEANT SULLIVAN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The opening paragraphs of your leading article to-day contain an attack on the professional conduct of myself and a number of my colleagues on adopting the declaration of the Irish Bishops against the application of conscription to this country. The basis of this attack is, first, a falsification of what we did, and, secondly, a falsification of what the Irish Bishops did. This latter misrepresentation originally arose through a mistake. The critics of the Bishops all assumed that the Conscription Act applied to Ireland, and misread their protest accordingly. The falsehood that the Bishops invited their flocks to resist the law will not cease to be repeated, although it is discovered that the resistance was by means of peaceful protest and prayer to "avert" the passing of the law at all.

Our action was the adoption of a protest against a proposal to enforce something not yet in force. Had the Act applied to Ireland, I quite agree it would have put a different construction on the declaration of the Bishops, and our protest could not have arisen. The original attack on the Bishops was commenced on the basis that they were denouncing an existing law. The ludicrous thing is that every man in Ireland is praying in his heart that what they denounced will never be the law. In view of the discovery that it still requires an Order in Council containing complicated enactments in itself to create the penal law, the charge is varied with repetition, and it is said that the Bishops were advising contingent illegality, as we were "invited by the Church to pledge ourselves to disobey" the law when it might be passed. That also is false, and the statement would never have been made but for the original error. However rash Irish Bishops may be, they have not yet advised any member of their flock to break the law, present or future. Their declaration does state that the enactment of conscription now would justify members of their flock in passive resistance. But this is true as they said it. It is a common-place fact. Every Catholic is supposed to know it as part of his law of conscience. It neither over-rides nor affects the law of the land, and its statement is certainly not an invitation to break the law, or a suggestion that the State should be prevented from enforcing its enactments in the usual way. The enforcement of those laws which we are not bound in conscience to respect has been so little affected by the conduct of our co-religionists for hundreds of years that apparently strangers never heard of them, though they are in operation in our midst. The claim for our support was that the Bishops were determined to prevent law-breaking, and that support they shall continue to have for that purpose. Notwithstanding the misconception and the storm that has arisen, the Bishops are the body who are really preserving the peace to-day in Ireland. To help in that is the duty of every liegeman of the Crown.

It is pleasant to turn from your anti-Popery criticism of King's Counsel to your helpful suggestion for aid for the King's Forces. The most effective means in our power to resist conscription is to find some effective substitute for getting men, and I cordially agree that every section that is fighting compulsion is in honour bound to help in organising a recruiting campaign. A firm bargain on either side is impossible, but, if the Government, without any pledge, frankly issued a call to our nation to organise a supply of soldiers, we should have sense enough to know that theologians, politicians, and even Papist King's Counsel, might by their response vindicate the sincerity of their opposition to conscription.—Yours, etc.,

A. M. SULLIVAN.

Dublin, April 26th, 1918.

[Our "anti-Popery criticism" consisted in giving their obvious meaning to English words. The Roman Catholic Hierarchy not only have declared that the Irish people have "a right to resist" conscription, but have formulated and administered a pledge of resistance to conscription if, and when, it is imposed on Ireland by Order in Council. Speaking in Carlow Dr. Foley, Bishop of Kildare, said that "the Bishops' resolution meant that the conscription law was no law at all; that it was ultra vires; that, in all the circumstances, proximate and remote, it essayed to impose on the conscience of the nation and of individuals an intolerable burden, which no secular authority could impose, and that, therefore, the people concerned had a right to resist that so-called law by every means that was consistent with Divine law." Dr. Foley added that the Bishops "naturally left it to the political leaders to determine what particular means would be 'the most effective at their disposal.'"—ED. I.T.]

LETTER FROM MR. SERJEANT McSWEENY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I observe from your columns to-day that you put, from the point of view of the Attorney-General, a series of questions to Crown Prosecutors as to what their action will be in particular cases. I can speak for nobody but myself, and my answer to your obviously inspired queries is that I have always done what I conceived to be my duty, irrespective of politics, in every case, civil and criminal, and that I shall continue to do so.

Having thus dealt with your hypothetical case, allow me to express a little mild surprise that, as you obviously consider matters of this kind of importance, you have restrained until now the ardour of your thirst for information. Four years ago a conspiracy was started in the North of Ireland in which many Crown Prosecutors took part, the members of which bound themselves—and they are still bound—to resist by force of arms the Government of the King in Ireland then about to be established. Your questions might have been very appropriately put to these gentlemen at the time, and they now may be administered to the residue of them who have not in the meantime been appointed to high office under the Crown. I say this because, as we have all seen, Sir Edward Carson is engaged in reorganising his "Provisional Government."

Above all, I should hope that you will ask the learned Attorney-General, the execution of whose office you have so much at heart, whether he is as ready to prosecute Sir Edward Carson, his senior colleague in the representation of Trinity College, for making arrangements to resist an Act of Parliament as he is to pursue with legal penalties all other evil-doers in the like case offending.

It ought to be the first object of every good citizen to see the law obeyed and respected in Ireland; but, if this wished-for consummation is to be brought about, the law must be equally enforced against all; otherwise it must fall into contempt—that is, indeed, if that point has not been already reached.—Yours, etc.,

GEORGE McSWEENY.

BELFAST CHILD'S MYSTERIOUS DEATH.

FIFTEEN-YEAR-OLD BOY ARRESTED.

The mystery surrounding the death of a child named William Murray, aged one year and eleven months, is at present engaging the attention of the Belfast Police. The child disappeared from his home, 14 Donore street, and about seven hours later was found in the coal cellar of a neighbour's house at 24 Donore street. Yesterday morning the police took into custody a boy named Joseph Fitt, who is stated to be about 15 years of age, and lives with his mother at the house in which the child's body was found. The parents of the dead child work outside during the day, and on Thursday the little one was left, as usual, in charge of his aunt, Miss M'Nally. About two o'clock in the afternoon Miss M'Nally missed the child from the street, where she had seen him shortly before playing with others. About nine o'clock Mrs. Fitt, who resides at 24 Donore street, and who, like others, had been assisting the distracted parents in their search for the missing baby, found the child's body lying just inside the kitchen coal cellar. She immediately informed Mrs. Murray.

At an inquest on a retired postal official in Battersea yesterday, it was stated that deceased's illness was characterised by all the symptoms of "botulism," the organism of which was to be found in uncooked ham or sausage. The disease was common in Germany, but had only lately been discovered in England.

SWINBURNE'S LETTERS.

This excellent book is a welcome addition to the Life of the poet, by Edmund Gosse, recently reviewed in these columns. It does not, indeed, seriously modify the picture then drawn of this notable figure, but it explains and defends the part which Watts-Dunton took in protecting the poet from himself, and so, possibly, limiting or warping his energies. The appearance of this new star on the homely and prudish horizon of mid-Victorian England may fairly be compared to the rise of Wagner in an age which thought Mendelssohn the highest outcome of the art of modern music. As Tennyson was the Mendelssohn, so Swinburne was the Wagner, and Browning the Brahms of the awakening. But this illustration only speaks to musicians. In plain English, Tennyson was the poetic spokesman of Victorian England—moral, domestic, sceptical only within religious limits, but withal learned, classical, cultivated, and at times very beautiful. Swinburne was from the outset "up against" all this. He was turbulent, revolutionary, irreligious, sensual, but at the same time rich, splendid, and exuberant—so much so as to be often prolix and redundant, and wearisome (like Wagner) to sober people by his perpetual change of key. It seems a great misfortune that he came very early under the influence of Victor Hugo and of such lyrists as Baudelaire, for they distorted his sane judgment, and made him mistake fuss and noise for grandeur, and the unveiling of the flesh for psychological insight.

Nevertheless, this is the poet whom the present generation, and probably the next, will take as their own in preference to the tamer and saner mid-Victorians. Such being the case, everything about the man is of interest, and even his faults and failings should be clearly stated. This his biographers and panegyrists have not done, and, still worse, by their vague allusions to his Bohemian life, and the irregularities which broke down his health, they have left on the world the impression that his vices might not be described, and that he was a man of low and sensual life. Mr. Clement Shorter is attacked in this book for using plain language, yet it is really due to the poet's character to tell openly that he was afflicted with the terrible disease known as dipsomania, and nothing more. He had no low-born companions; he did not descend into haunts of ill-fame; but when he had tasted of the poison of alcohol he would go on in his lonely lodgings till he drank himself "blind."

Swinburne's rapid recovery was quite remarkable: still more the very rare case of a complete cure without any relapse for thirty years. Most of us have known cases of this fell disease, and we can, therefore, fully appreciate the great feat performed by Watts-Dunton, whose long labour of care and love need not fear any criticism. But for him Swinburne would have died a generation sooner. Whether his intellectual work was, or was not, marred by a life of discipline is a question which never can be settled. Most lyric poets are not effective in their later life. A lyric poet self-ruined like Swinburne would certainly have produced nothing good or lasting. But he did live a peaceful and intellectual life, and attained what happiness was possible in the long twilight after the setting of his sun. On this the present volume affords us ample and interesting evidence.

AUSTRO-GERMAN DIPLOMACY.

Countess Olga Leutrum's book is a powerful plea addressed to Russia to emerge from the state in which Bolshevism, combined with German gold, has laid her. It is not only a powerful plea, but it is also an extremely passionate one. The revelations of Prince Lichnowsky, the admissions of Herr von Jagow, the remarks of Herr Muhlon, and the utterances of Count Czernin leave little doubt in the mind of the thoughtful man that Germany planned and plotted the outbreak of war. Countess Olga Leutrum furnishes us with fresh evidence which makes it clear that, when the moment suited, Germany meant to strike. She records the following remarks of Count Munster: "Ah! Yes, in the question of arbitration? A Utopia, madam—believe me, a Utopia. We Germans believe in maintaining peace, of course—so does our Emperor; but a sensible peace, armed to the teeth. Personally, I have nothing against signing the Convention (i.e. the Hague Convention in favour of international arbitration). What is a convention but a parchment? One signs it; it gives pleasure to everybody for the time being, and at the historical moment one steps over it without more ado, and, if one is powerful enough, one can always make one's bow and one's excuses to posterity." That is, in Count Munster's opinion, international law is so much waste paper.

A Belgian refugee was captured and brought before a German general. The refugee was a man of education, and asked the general: "How will you look in the eyes of posterity when history comes to record the story of your atrocities in Belgium?" "We shall win," was the reply, "and the historians will have to take the side of the conquerors. Les absents ont toujours tort, and the beaten are always wrong." Whatever may be the outcome of the war, Germany will not conquer sufficiently to make historians in France, England and the United States take the line that, as the Germans were supermen, all that they did was consequently justified. In order to make such a reading of history possible the Germans must have conquered all nations completely, and, whatever may be the outcome of the present fierce battles for the coast, that is no longer possible.

We do not adduce the evidence which Countess Olga Leutrum presents, but simply refer our readers to her own pages for it. One or two points we cannot, however, completely pass over. We all know the danger in which we were in 1906, 1911, and 1912. According to her—and we entirely believe her—the year 1909 was also a critical period. She was then in North Hungary, and troops were stationed near the house where she was staying. A Tzech officer told her that the manœuvres were a sham, covering a secret mobilisation against Russia. He said that it was the same in the south, where there was an army mobilised against Serbia and Montenegro. In July, 1914, the story was that French officers crossed in a motor car into Germany, thereby violating the territory of Germany. In 1909 the tale ran that Cossacks crossed the Galician frontier. "It was," concludes Countess Olga Leutrum, "exactly five years, less a month, before the war actually started. Will any 'pacifist' still have the courage to stand up to me and utter his lukewarm sentiments about 'every Power having been in fault, more or less,' 'the sooner we make peace the better,' and more stuff like it? Can you still not see how deeply treacherous was the behaviour of the Central Powers? Who dare affirm that 'they did not want the war'? I have shown you one instance of how they were on the qui vive for a war. There is more to come." More she certainly gives, and gives with illuminating comment.

ALSACE-LORRAINE.

Since the year 1871 the question of Alsace-Lorraine has been a disturbing factor in European politics, and at the present moment it is of particular importance since the Allies appear to have determined that the restoration of the provinces to France is essential to any settlement of the war. To those who wish to understand the question we can recommend M. Jules Duhem's book. Within the compass of two hundred pages he discusses many of its aspects, and deals very fully with the history of the provinces since they became the German Reichsland. Perhaps, the most valuable chapter is that in which are described the efforts of the Lorrainers and Alsatians to keep alive the French language and the French spirit. Towards the end of the book there is an attractive short chapter on the geography of the provinces from a military and political standpoint, and another which gives a résumé of their history from the earliest times to 1871. In this latter chapter the author makes a strong point of the fact that the provinces were never really German, and that, within a hundred years of their union with France in 1681, they had become enthusiastically French in their sympathies.

M. Duhem makes out an excellent case from the French point of view, but he certainly does not approach the subject with an open mind, and, even amid the passions and excitement of the present moment, it is well to remember that there is a German side to the question. So far back as 1841 Moltke wrote:—"All the territory that France has gained on her Eastern border since the thirteenth century has been robbed from Germany; all the lands of Burgundy and Lorraine are our ancient possessions stolen by France." The fact remains, however, and against it German arguments drawn from philology and ethnology break in vain, that in 1871 a million happy and loyal people were wrenched away from the France they loved, and, without reference to their own wishes, turned into discontented German subjects.

A POET'S PILGRIMAGE.

Mr. Davies has forsaken the path of poetry to give us, in this book, a collection of prose papers concerning his walking-tour through South Wales and "into England." He discourses pleasantly, with something of the subtle distinction that marks his verse, on men and their ways; and the whole forms, as one can conceive, a faithful record of his uneventful journeying. Among several amusing experiences related of his encounters with chance acquaintances of the road the best is the story of the stranger who was alike uplifted and dismayed at finding himself in the company of a poet:—"We went along chatting . . . until we came to an inn, where we came to a halt and I invited the stranger to have a drink. While we were there the stranger said in a coaxing voice: 'I wish you would write me some poetry on a piece of paper to show my wife and to prove that I have been with a poet.'" Thereupon the author dashed off an impromptu set of verses that must have sorely puzzled the good dame, addressed "To the Woman Who will Read this Poem to Her Husband." Much quiet enjoyment may be derived from the narrative of this pilgrimage.

LANGUAGE AND NATIONALITY.

Dr. O'Hickey gave the lectures which he has entitled "Language and Nationality" at Maynooth College, and this in itself makes them interesting. One wants to know what type of lecture is given there, and in this book we have a sample of it. The case which the writer makes is by this time a familiar one, and for those who share his views it will prove stimulating. To Dr. O'Hickey it is quite clear that it is not possible to possess Irish nationality without being able to speak and read Irish. He asks us to fancy the position of an educated Greek knowing nothing of his country's literature. Well, we can fancy it, for we happen to possess an acquaintance with two highly educated Greeks who are not familiar with either the "Iliad" or the "Odyssey." This, Dr. O'Hickey tells us, is impossible. The Swiss have highly developed national feelings, and they certainly possess no common language, for they speak Italian, German, and French. We read this book with care, but feel bound to say that difficulties of this nature are not met by its arguments.

JERUSALEM DELIVERED.

Dr. E. W. G. Masterman, who is Honorary General Secretary of the Palestine Exploration Fund, is exceptionally well qualified to write on Palestine, and he has produced a very interesting pamphlet on the events culminating in the capture of Jerusalem by the Allied Forces. The thoroughness of German "publicity" methods is recognised by Dr. Masterman in a paragraph which is worth quotation: "The interval between mobilisation (of Turkey) and declaration of war with the Allies was utilised by the resident official Germans and Young Turks in a strong pro-German propaganda, and the religious feelings of the Moslems were worked up by the statement, freely distributed in Arabic circulars, that Germans were not Christians like the French or English, but followers of the prophet Mohammed, and passages from the Koran were quoted prophesying the coming of the Kaiser as the saviour of Islam. The Kaiser himself was publicly prayed for in the mosques as 'Haji Wilhelm,' the title Haji being one applied, as a rule, to a Moslem. Telegrams printed in Arabic were circulated giving accounts of endless German victories."

RECENT FICTION.

This last story of a favourite novelist is quite up to her wonted level. It is a case of impersonation that involves Alford Steyning in an awkward complication. Steyning is a young man of brains and education, who is about to commit suicide in a despairing mood, born of his penniless and friendless condition, when he is accosted by his own double and persuaded to accompany him. Stedd is a wealthy and dissolute American, and wishes to disappear, for a good reason. He leaves Steyning in his place, to the enjoyment of an unlimited supply of cash, a tactful valet, and a beautiful fiancée.

The business of an important Manchester dye-works figures largely in this humdrum tale. Ronald Egerton, a Harrow boy, is the only son of the manufacturer, and is reluctantly obliged to take his place in the industry. There is much detail of a technical kind about the art of dyeing. For the rest, Ronald's love-affair with the daughter of his father's manager is unfolded in a leisurely fashion, and the only unexpected touch occurs when Maggie—who is deemed far beneath young Egerton in the social scale—marries Lord Harry Calvert.

Irish Exports.—At a meeting of the Statistical and Social Inquiry Society of Ireland held at the Bankers' Institute, St. Stephen's Green, Dublin, last night—Sir Wm. Thompson, Registrar-General, presiding, in the absence of the President, Mr. Wm. Lawson—Professor C. H. Oldham read a paper, entitled "Changes in Irish Exports during Twelve Years." Professor Oldham analysed the changes in the exports during the twelve years 1904 to 1915, inclusive, as revealed in the reports of the statistical branch of the Department of Agriculture. The whole result of his investigation had been to show that Irish manufactured products were more efficiently produced than Irish agricultural products, and were making greater headway, but both branches of Irish exports had made remarkable progress in the period under review.

Boy Scouts and Colonial Soldier.—On Anzac Day a deputation of Boy Scouts, accompanied by the Commissioner, Mr. S. A. Quan-Smith, and Scoutmaster Henchy, attended at Mount Jerome Cemetery and decorated the grave of an Australian soldier named Davis, who died in Dublin and was buried there. The Commissioner, standing at the graveside, said that this Australian soldier had left his own sunny land at the call of King and country, and, through his love of the motherland, had died far from his home. No doubt, he had many relatives, who would, with loving hands, have laid flowers on his grave if that had been possible. As it could not be, the Boy Scouts had felt it a duty in love and gratitude to decorate this Australian soldier's lonely grave on Anzac Day. The Commissioner also sent a cablegram to Australia informing the Scouts there that they had not forgotten on Anzac Day to honour the far-off grave of their fellow-countryman and soldier of the King.

A MAN WITH TWO HOMES.

At the Worcester County Court on Wednesday, before His Honor Judge Ingram, Mr. W. W. A. Tree appeared on behalf of Mrs. Eliza Wells, 18 Townsend street, Worcester, and her daughter, Alice Maud Wells, who were the applicants in a compensation case in which the respondents were Messrs. Everitt and Newbiggin, Newcastle-on-Tyne, managers for the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, compensation being claimed in respect of the death of George William Wells, husband of the first-named applicant and father of the second, who was killed on a ship on which he was engaged being sunk by a mine off Sunderland on January 4th, 1917.

Mrs. Wells said she lived with her husband until March, 1910, when they agreed to separate, the husband promising her an allowance of £2 per month. He was a chief officer in the merchant service. She received the money regularly down to the end of 1914, when her daughter received a letter from Wells intimating that on account of his eyesight he had had to leave the sea, and informing her that he was out of work, but promising to continue the allowance as soon as he was able. They had not heard from him since, but in October she heard that he was dead.

Mrs. Margaret Walsh, of Queen's square, Dublin, said she was married 22 years ago to her husband, who deserted her, leaving her with three children. In 1911 she met the late Mr. Wells, who suggested that she should marry him, and she told him the truth that she was a married woman, but agreed to live with him, which she did. He sent her money regularly, as much as £3 per week. In 1915 she left Ireland for England to live with Wells at Tyne Dock. Subsequently he took a house near Eastbourne, Durham, furnishing it. Wells got work in a Jarrow shipyard, earning 28/- per week, which he gave her. Up to the time of his death Wells sent her money regularly, upon which she lived. He never told her that he was a married man, but gave her the means to ascertain if her own husband was alive.

His Honor found for Mrs. Wells, and awarded her £75.

BAD AND STALE EGGS.

An important warning concerning all those who trade in eggs is published in our advertising columns. It has been ascertained by the Irish Food Control Committee that thousands of eggs which came mainly from the North-West of Ireland were bad, and had to be destroyed. During the ten weeks to October 30th, 1917, over four thousand dozen eggs were found to be unfit for human consumption, and this wholesale destruction of important food was principally due to delay in marketing—a responsibility which must be shared by poultry-keepers and local traders. In addition to bad eggs, many were found to be stale, and were probably quite bad before reaching Great Britain. The Food Control Committee have full powers to punish offenders, and doubtless will at once take steps to put a stop to the gigantic waste which may continue within the next few months, unless dealers and others will observe the regulations issued for the protection of the consumers.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE END THEREOF?

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—"A wonderful and horrible thing is committed in the land. The prophets prophesy falsely, and the priests bear rule by their means; and my people love to have it so: and what will ye do in the end thereof?" (Jeremiah V., 30, 31).—Yours, etc.,

THE DUBLIN COOKED FOOD DEPOTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The letter which appeared in your issue of the 25th inst., signed "S.," accurately reflects the opinions expressed by a sub-committee of the Local Relief Committee at two conferences which took place last year with the Chairman and certain other members of the Cooked Food Committee. The latter body, however, did not see their way to give the 2½d. meal a trial, and continued to carry on the Depôts on the existing lines, although the original grant of £1,250 from the Prince of Wales's Fund was made to enable the Cooked Food Committee to launch the undertaking by providing money to purchase food and supplying the necessary equipment and utensils, as well as paying the wages of women cooks and initial expenses for a definite period of six months, by which time the Local Government Board and Relief Committee expected that the scheme would have been placed on a self-supporting basis, as in other cities.

The idea of charity never entered into my mind, nor was it suggested by the ladies and gentlemen who waited on me in the month of April, 1917, to enlist my support for the project of providing a mid-day meal for workingmen at a price which would be within their means and less than that at which it could be provided in their own homes, when the high cost of provisions and fuel—purchased in small quantities—was taken into account. The feeding of the very poor—whom we have always with us—was not contemplated at the inception of the Cooked Food Depôts.

It is but common fairness to add that the Local Government Board has never turned a deaf ear to any well-considered and practical proposal placed before it by the Local Relief Committee, and the latter body has already—thanks chiefly to the broadminded view taken of matters by the Vice-President of that Board—administered a total sum much in excess of the amount, considerable as it was, which the committee, presided over by Lord Meath, collected in Dublin City and County, and remitted to the National Relief Fund in London.—Yours, etc.,

JOHN IRWIN.

THE SUPPLY OF MAIZE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—With reference to the leading article in your issue of 25th inst. under above heading, and as same was evidently written under the impression that the Irish Maize-Millers' Association were crying "Wolf, wolf," when there was no wolf, I desire, on behalf of my Association, to put the following facts before you as far as possible, without repeating the arguments put forward by the chairman of the Dublin meeting in his letter, which appeared in your issue of the 26th inst.

You stated that "substitute foods for maize are available." I would like to know what these foods are? To put the position in figures of how Ireland stands so far as the supply of food for cattle, pigs, and poultry is concerned, Ireland in past years imported weekly for the sole purpose of cattle-feeding about 8,000 tons of maize. This is stopped completely, as, under Order dated March 6th, the Royal Wheat Commission stated that only damaged maize or maize which arrived unfit for flour admixture purposes was to be used for cattle-food, which means that unless the maize gets damaged in transit—and this is a somewhat rare occurrence—none of it will be available for cattle-feeding purposes.

Wheat offals—that is, bran, pollard, and sharps—about 900 tons weekly, were imported from English and Scotch mills. This also has ceased. Irish mills produced about 1,800 tons weekly. This, owing to the new milling regulations, is now reduced to about 300 tons. The importations of English, Scotch, and American oilcakes were 1,100 tons weekly, with the exception of a few tons coming from English mills. This supply is also stopped.

Making due allowance for the increased acreage under oats and potatoes last year, and allowing for the extra quantity of these which it is possible to use in the absence of the usual cattle-feeding-stuffs, I think it is obvious that we are getting into a very critical position so far as the supply of cattle-food and pig-feeding-stuffs is concerned. You cannot cut off over 11,000 tons weekly of feeding-stuffs from Ireland without having a very serious effect on the various industries depending thereon. At present there are frequent arrivals in Ireland of steamers from North American ports carrying wheat, flour, and other goods; and, as maize is also available at the ports where these steamers are loaded, there is nothing to prevent the Wheat Commission from sending a supply of maize to Ireland for pig, cattle, and poultry-feeding, if they desired to do so.

As stated in Mr. M'Govern's letter, maize-millers in Ireland are well aware that the shipping situation is serious, and that the cargo space allotted to all imports must of necessity be curtailed for this reason. At the recent interview with the Royal Wheat Commission the deputation from the Irish maize-millers only suggested a supply of maize being given for feeding purposes in Ireland equal to 25 per cent. of the normal. I do not think that this is an unreasonable request, bearing in mind the fact that this amount would have to stand against the practical absence of wheat offals, oil-cakes, and feeding meals of every description.

The available supply of shipping tonnage is apportioned over the various trades in the United Kingdom by a special committee, who take into consideration the relative importance of each commodity to the country as a whole. I am satisfied that, if this committee had the Irish feeding-stuffs position placed before them, they could not fail to concede the justice of our demands, having regard to the importance of pig and cattle-breeding to every member of the community.—Yours, etc.,

JAMES G. THOMPSON, Secretary.

SUBMARINE VICTIMS' FUND.

The Committee of the Submarine Victims' Fund met yesterday at the Mansion House, Dublin, the Lord Mayor in the chair. There were also present Canon Brady, P.P.; Dr. Denham Osborne, William Field, M.P.; James Laidlaw, C. J. Mahony, R. Wigoder, Alderman Alfred Byrne, M.P.; and J. J. Nagle. Messrs. J. A. Ryder and P. H. Stewart attended as a deputation from the Leinster Football Association, and informed the Committee that that Association had arranged for a benefit match for the fund, to be played between Bohemians and Shelbourne on May 11th at Dalymount Park. It was decided that a set of gold medals should be given to the winning team, and a sub-committee was appointed to co-operate with Messrs. Ryder and Stewart in carrying out the arrangements for the match. The Committee had also great pleasure in co-opting Messrs. Ryder and Stewart on the general body. Mr. C. J. Mahony reported on a number of cases which were under his charge, and special grants were made in these particular cases, and it was decided that further inquiry should be made into them with a view to their adoption. Canon Brady reported on the cases in his charge, and the Committee directed that the relief in these particular cases should be continued. Dr. Denham Osborne made a special report upon the cases of victims' dependents who lived in Liverpool, and grants were made in all the cases, and the Committee decided to make the grants retrospective. Alderman Byrne and Mr. William Field, M.P., were appointed a special deputation to make inquiries with reference to certain cases which were under the consideration of the Committee, and to report at the next meeting.

COMING EVENTS.

Irish National Novena.—As announced in our advertising columns, the Irish National Novena for general and domestic peace will begin on Friday, May 3rd, and conclude on Sunday, May 12th.

Abbey Theatre Lectures.—The third of the series of Abbey lectures, which will be given to-morrow evening, at 8.15 o'clock, in the Abbey Theatre, Dublin, by the Rev. Thomas Finlay, S.J., will be more in the nature of a talk than a lecture, and will be followed by a discussion. The subject is "National Economics."

Sir Patrick Dun's Hospital.—An appeal by Lady Powerscourt on behalf of Sir Patrick Dun's Hospital, together with the second list of subscriptions, appears in our advertising columns. The splendid services of this hospital on behalf of the poor and its share in war work in taking in and caring for many wounded soldiers should assure it of a very generous measure of support.

FINANCIAL NEWS

DUBLIN STOCK EXCHANGE.

GUINNESS STILL HIGHER. MARCONIS AND TEXTILES FIRMER.

DUBLIN, FRIDAY EVENING.

The amount of dealing on 'Change naturally remains very circumscribed, but in most directions the prevailing tendency remains satisfactory, notwithstanding sales to secure profits out of the week's pretty general recovery in prices. War Loans were strong, with Consols less firm. The further fall in Provincial Banks to 22 was a feature. Steady support was offered for Breweries and Distilleries. Marconi Shares were good, though dealing was poor in volume. Rails steadied a little. Dublin Trams were wanted. Dunlops were easier. Textiles were firmer, especially Spinner Ord.

LONDON MONEY MARKET.

Bank Rate (changed April 5, 1917) .... 5 p.c.

There was a fairly brisk demand for loan accommodation until to-day during the first part of the day, when the posted rate was 2½ to 3 p.c. Subsequently the influence of the usual week-end disbursements was felt, and the rate slackened to 2 p.c. There was no change in the charge for weekly fixtures at 3 to 3½ p.c. The Discount market was hardly so firm, and the demand for fine bills keeps brisk, especially in the case of shorter dated maturities. Paper was only in moderate supply. In the face of brisk bidding, April to June Treasury bills fell to 3⅞ to 3¼ p.c. There was some business in six months' French Treasury bills around 5 p.c. Trade paper was unaltered.

LONDON STOCK MARKETS QUIETER.

LESS FAVOURABLE WAR NEWS.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, FRIDAY.

Week-end influences and the less favourable war news kept Stock Exchange operations within very narrow limits throughout to-day's session, but markets possessed stability, and quotations even tended forward here and there, though movements on balance were restricted, and no special feature was developed. In the gilt-edged department a forward tendency predominated. Miscellaneous gilt-edged issues were steady, without much activity, though Indian Government issues and 5 p.c. and 6 p.c. Exchequer Bonds came in for a fair amount of attention at previous rates. The Colonial list was quietly firm, and shorter dated securities showed to advantage, though they were rarely higher to quote.

Changes:—Rises—3½ p.c. War Loan, ⅛ to 87; 4½ p.c. do., ⅛ to 99¼; 5 p.c. do., ⅛ to 92⅞. Fall—Consols, ⅛ to 55¼.

ALLIED BONDS FIRM.

In the Foreign Market Allied Bonds preserved their firm front, quotations being unaffected by the latest war news. The Chinese, Egyptian, and Greek groups were all inclined to cheerfulness in a quiet way. Spanish Fours were unsteady around 120. The establishment of American and French credits in Madrid should indirectly tend to stabilise the sterling exchange. Peruvians were inclined to mend, but they were finally no higher to quote. Amsterdam selling appears to have stopped, though the political news from that quarter was the reverse of reassuring.

Changes:—Rises—French Loan, ⅛ to 77¼; German Threes, ⅛ to 52. Fall—Spanish Fours, 5 to 121.

RAILWAYS DULL.

The Home Railway market remained slow. Several quotations tended forward, but they lacked staying power. Southern Stocks were dull, and Scotch Stocks ruled about the same.

Canadian Railways were dull. Canadian Pacifics shed ⅛, and in the Grand Trunk group the Guaranteed Fours were ⅛ down, the overnight meeting bringing no outside buying. Mexican Railways showed irregularity. One or two Argentine railways slipped back ⅛ to ¼. Leopoldinas, in the Brazil group, held firm. Antofagasta issues were firm on dividend hopes.

Changes:—Rises—Metropolitan, ⅛ to 21½; North-Eastern, ⅛ to 93; Brazil Railway Pref., ⅛ to 9½; Mexican Rail 1st Pref., ⅛ to 44. Falls—Underground Income Bonds, ⅛ to 74; do. Debs., 1 to 89¼; Canadian Pacific, ⅛ to 157; Grand Trunk Guaranteed, ⅛ to 45½; Buenos Ayres Great Southern, ⅛ to 67½; Central Argentine, ⅛ to 58½; Mexican Rails 2nd Pref., 1 to 23.

INDUSTRIALS MAINTAINED.

Among Miscellaneous and Industrial Securities business was of a light and spotty character. Underlying conditions remained steady. Marconis further hardened 1/16, and the Marine Shares were up to 48/-. There was little change in the Bank Share group. Cements were strong, Associated Ord. rising 1/16 to 3¼, while the Pref. at 7⅛ was ⅛ up. Among Land descriptions Hudson's Bays at 7½ were ⅛ up. Shipping issues were spotty. Cunards around 80/6, Clan Line around 41/-, and Court Line around 34/6 met chief attention. Tyne were supported up to 21/-. Breweries were occasionally firmer. In the Iron and Steel group B.S.A. advanced 1/16 to 3⅛ on provincial support. Clayton and Shuttleworths were dull on the reduced dividend. Workingtons eased to 28/6. Textiles held their ground.

Changes:—Rises—Marconi, 1/16 to 3⅛; do. Marine, 1/- to 48/-; Associated Portland Cement, 1/16 to 3¼; do. Pref., ⅛ to 7⅛; B.S.A., 1/16 to 3⅛; Brit. Oil and Cake, 1/16 to 1⅜; National Explosives, 6d. to 34/6; Allsopp Pref., 1 to 35¼; Hudson's Bay, ⅛ to 7½. Fall—Home and Colonial 8 p.c. Pref., 1/16 to 4⅛.

MINING MARKET LESS ACTIVE.

Business among Mines contracted. Even the Tin group showed less briskness, and prices moved with some indecision, though the metal held its overnight jump to £350 per ton. Kaffirs were firm in the main, though they lacked any sustained volume of support. Chartereds showed to advantage among Rhodesians. Tintos were firm on expectations of an impending introduction of the shares on to the Spanish Bourses. The Silver group was slow.

RUBBER SHARES QUIET.

The price of rubber was a little lower at 2/5 per lb. In the Share Market the week finished without feature of importance. Quotations kept firm all round, and such alterations as occurred were in the upward direction, the only exception being Anglo-Dutch, with a decline to 30/-. The volume of business was small, and price changes did not amount to much.

OIL SHARES STEADY.

Oil Shares were on the firm side, but business was slow. The Egyptian group was steady, without change. Trinidad Leaseholds at 34/6 were firm.

Lambs also selling at unsatisfactory prices.—(Advt.)

BASIC SLAG.—This excellent Fertiliser is strongly recommended for Turnips and other Root Crops. Immediate delivery can be given by LAWE'S CHEMICAL MANURE CO., LTD., 22 Eden quay, Dublin.—(Advt.)

GRAIN.

DUBLIN CORN EXCHANGE.—April 26.

The weather continues very fine, and the temperature more favourable to vegetation, but there are still heavy night frosts. The general situation of leading markets for cereal produce remains unchanged; both afloat and in spot distribution transactions offerings by Royal Commission are kept very close, and prices firm. Locally matters follow an absolutely dull and featureless routine, and there is nothing to note in foreign produce. With regard to Irish grain, too, there is very little of either wheat or oats offering, and prices show little change. In seed oats the sale is practically done, and many holders having an overplus of such stocks must await permits to sell for milling and feeding purposes. Our Corn Exchange to-day presented an unusually dull and deserted appearance, and there was consequently little business, even of the merest retail order, transacted.

FLOATING GRAIN CARGOES (BALTIC), Friday.—WHEAT—There was no fresh feature in this market. Official offers were on a limited scale and prices unaltered, while trade continued restricted. MAIZE firm and sparingly offered. Parcels of South African quoted 74/6 to 80/-, as to grade; American mixed 75/- to 77/-, and yellow La Plata 76/- per 480lbs. BARLEY firm; Californian and Oregon quoted 90/- per 448lbs.; American malting 81/-; No. 3 Canadian Western 81/-; No. 4 do. 77/6 per 400lbs. OATS maintained; parcels of No. 2 American white clipped 55/-, 59/-, do. 59/-, 59/6 per 320lbs.

MARK LANE, Friday.—ENGLISH WHEAT—Whites delivered up 76/9, reds 76/9 per qr. of 504lbs. Foreign Grades—No. 1 Northern Manitoba 82/3 landed, No. 3 80/9 landed, No. 3 78/9 landed; Australian spot, 84/3 landed; No. 2 hard winter, 80/9 landed; La Plata, 82/-. FLOUR in steady request; Canadian exports patents, 51/9 ex warehouse; English G.R., 44/3 ex mills. GRINDING BARLEY nominal; English, 62/9 to 63/9; Californian, 95/- landed. OATS firm, scarce; No. 2 Canada Western, 53/6 landed; American white clipped No. 2, 61/6 to 62/- landed. MAIZE firmly held; mixed American, 81/3 to 81/6 ex store.

LIVERPOOL, Friday.—Off parcels of wheat and maize were again fairly active at unchanged prices. WHEAT on the spot was in fair request at recent currencies, River Plate, blue stem, and white Walla again attracting most attention. MAIZE—Spot parcels scarce and nominal. FLOUR in fair request, without alteration in value. BEANS scarce, and firmly held. PEAS ruled somewhat irregular. BARLEY and OATS nominal. OATMEAL met a fair inquiry at unchanged prices. In WHEAT PARCELS, No. 1 Manitoba afloat sold at 77/6, No. 2 76/-, No. 3 69/-, and sample Manitoba 73/6 per qr.; No. 3 American mixed (kiln-dried) afloat sold to Liverpool and Manchester at 78/-, and yellow American to Liverpool 78/6 per qr.

WAKEFIELD, April 26.—Light supplies, but a good inquiry for anything on offer, for which full Government fixed prices are obtained, viz.:—Wheat, 74/6 per quarter; oats, 45/3; barley, 62/9. Feeding stuffs still very scarce.

PROVISIONS.

LIVERPOOL, Friday.—There was no material change in the situation for American BACON, SHOULDERS, or HAMS here, the supplies of which were still fully equal to coupon requirements, and late prices were repeated. The Ministry of Food has confirmed a flat rate, whereby the retailer in future will pay the same price whether he buys from importers, wholesalers, or secondary wholesalers, and the retailer can now also select two suppliers provided his purchases exceed five cwt. per week. Canadian bacon still plentiful, but Irish and Danish remained nominal. LARD on the spot was firm with a fair demand, but the quantity available was again quite inadequate to the demand of both prime steam and American refined. CHEESE very scarce, and further allocations still anxiously looked for, being now considerably overdue. BUTTER—Supply ample for present needs, though a fair inquiry was experienced at the controlled figures. EGGS steady and unchanged for Irish, but Egyptian were 18/- to 19/6. Compound scarce and nominal.

LONDON, Friday.—BUTTER—Further quantities of Colonial are available, and another distribution is expected towards the end of next week. CHEESE very scarce, and market nominal, pending a further allotment; Canadian, new, old, finest, coloured, and secondary, and New Zealand white, coloured, and secondary all at Government prices; English—Finest Cheshire full cream, finest Cheddar and finest Cheddar loaf 168/-; Stiltons, loaf, blue, 1/7 lb.; Staffords full cream and Lancs. full cream 168/-; Caerphilly whole milk, 154/-; Dutch, finest farmers' Edam, fine, and inferior, Gouda, outshots, Derby, Factory Edam, seconds, and Gouda, all Government controlling distribution; United States at Government price. BACON—No Irish available, while Danish impressed by Government; large supplies of Canadian and American continue on hand; Irish, lean sizeable, lean stout, stout sizeable, fat stout, and good and seconds all 188/- ex factory, but exportation stopped; Danish, No. 1, No. 2, and No. 3 sizeable, sizes No. 1 and No. 2, No. 1 as do. 2 stout, and good and seconds 172/- ex port; Canadian, No. 1 (44lbs. to 62lbs.), No. 2, No. 3, and heavy weights 171/- to 172/- ex port; American Cumberland cut, 172/- ex port; bellies, box 180/- ex port; Canadian cured American 171/- to 172/- ex port. LARD in limited supply; Irish bladders 162/-, all descriptions of packages, ex factory; boxes, 28lbs. and 56lbs. American 152/- ex port; American pails 152/- ex port. EGGS—Market fairly steady, with ample supplies; English, new laid, 33/- to 34/-; Irish 32/6 to 33/-, do duck 38/6; Danish, 34/- to 36/-; Egyptian, 22/- to 23/- per 120.

DUBLIN FRUIT AND VEGETABLE, April 26.—There was rather a larger supply of all classes of seasonable vegetables on market this morning, raidshes, rhubarb, lettuce, and other early stuff featuring pretty strongly. Cabbage made more moderate rates, and is showing a good deal of improvement in quality. Sound broccoli is selling particularly well, and rhubarb of good quality is making marvellously satisfactory prices, indeed selling better than in times gone by when the question of sugar did not arise at all. Leading rates were:—Broccoli, 7/- to 10/- and 12/2 per basket; seconds, 3/6 to 5/-; York cabbage, from 10/- to 20/- and 36/- and 38/- per load; rhubarb, of best quality, 2/6 to 5/- per dozen bunches, and other sorts down to 1/6; lettuce, 4d. to 8d. and 1/- per dozen; scallions, 9d. to 1/- and 1/8 per bundle; leeks, 2/- to 2/10 per dozen; white turnips, 8d. to 1/- per bundle; celery, 8d. to 1/3 per ditto; thyme, 9d. to 1/- per dozen; parsley, 6d. to 1/- per float; beet, 6d. to 1/3 per bunch; mint from 6d. to 7d.; carrots, 1/- to 1/4 per dozen bundles; parsnips, 1/4 per do., and from 4/6 to 5/- and 5/6 per cwt. Although the market would give an impression that oranges had become plentiful; this is not so; they are scarce, and nearly out, making dear rates. Very little other fruit featuring at all.

HALSTON STREET POULTRY, April 26.—Supplies of all classes of poultry remain remarkably scarce, and demand for everything active at generally previous prevailing high prices. However, plump and tender cock turkeys have gone up to 40/- each, whilst ordinary are from 20/- to 30/- each, and seconds arounds 18/- each; hen turkeys averaged 14/- to 20/- each; large fat hens, 10/- to 13/- each; good seconds, 7/- to 8/6; others, 4/6 to 6/- each; best crammed fowl, 10/- to 13/- each; best large house-finished chickens, 8/6 to 9/6 each; mediums, 6/6 to 7/6 each, and thirds from 4/- to 5/- each; prime large fattened ducks, 6/- to 7/- each; seconds from 4/- to 6/- each; good fleshy stores around 4/- each; prime Guinea fowl, in feather, 5/- each; young pigeons are in request at 1/9 to 2/- each, and old and wild are making 1/- each. Rabbits show increased supply, but still they are short of requirements, sale being very good for fresh trapped rabbits and large grassers, good size of the latter making up to 1/9 each, and the former 1/11 each; average grassers, 6d. to 1/6 each.

DUBLIN POTATO, April 26.—There has been some slight disorganisation in the supplies of potatoes, first, in consequence of the advance to growers on the 15th inst., which has upset certain business connections; then the Labour holiday has caused some run down in stocks, whilst, finally, railway arrangements have become so difficult that country deliveries are hard and uncertain to get forward. In the circumstances, city spot supplies are none too liberal, but still enough to satisfy the trade, which is a little keener of late. Prices, however, show no change; best rail qualities figure in some hands at 5/4 and in others at 5/6 per cwt., and growthy and inferior qualities of stuff may be repeated at 4/9 to 5/- per cwt.

DUBLIN FISH, April 26.—Of white fish there were no steam trawl arrivals, and supplies from country sources were all small; 32 packages of mackerel and 17 of herrings were to hand for the early market, but we understand that nearly the same quantity of mackerel failed to reach the market in time. There were 44 packages of salmon to be dealt with, but some delayed lots came to hand in very inferior order and sold cheap. Trade all round was good at the following leading prices:—Live salmon, 2/8 to 2/9 per lb.; inferior, 1/6 per lb.; best trout, 1/8 to 2/2 per lb.; large lite lobsters averaged 25/- to 30/- per 13; mediums, 12/6 to 20/-, and small and dead from 5/- to 10/-; turbots were all small size, and averaged 2/6 to 10/- each; brill from 2/- to 7/- each; best black soles made marvellous prices, but few complete lots, firsts averaged 50/- to 80/- per 9 pairs; seconds, 30/- to 40/-, and slips from 10/- to 22/6; haddocks were 2/- to 3/- each, and whiting from 4/- to 6/- per hank; herrings made 55/- to 65/- per barrel; mackerel, 45/- per box; plaice, 100/- to 160/- per half-box; codfish, 100/- to 110/-; haddock, 90/- to 100/-, and ray, 30/- to 40/- per half-box.

BILLINGSGATE FISH, April 26.—Supplies moderate; demand good. Salmon, English, Scotch, and Irish, 2/8; trout, 2/8; soles and slips, 3/1; red mullet, 2/10; dories, 1/-; turbot, brill, and halibut, 2/2 per lb.; lemon soles, 25/-; whitches, 25/-; plaice, 25/-; dabs, 14/-; skate wings, 16/-; cod, also whiting, 14/-; grey mullet, 17/-; bream, gurnet, monkfish, and conger eel, 11/-; haddocks, 14/- per stone; eels, live, also dead, 35/- per draft; lobsters, 40/- to 80/- per score.

MANCHESTER, Friday.—Supplies irregular. Irish and Danish BACON nominal. American supplies ample to cover rationing requirements. HAMS and SHOULDERS are in ready demand. LARD—English refined is scarce and firm, and in American more business could be done if larger quantities were released. CHEESE—Cheshire and Lancashire warehouses are bare of supplies. Further allotments of Government cheese are eagerly awaited. EGGS—Inquiry is good, and values are well maintained. Irish hen, extras 33/6 to 34/-, duck 40/-; Egyptian 21/- to 22/6 per 120.

MANCHESTER BUTTER, Friday.—The market at the moment is bare of orders, and merchants are awaiting another distribution.

LITTLE GREEN, April 26.—Creamery butter in tolerably free supply, and meeting a steady trade in bulk at 238/- per cwt., and rolls, 2/2 per lb.; very little bulk cream obtainable at 238/- this week; some factory consignments are realising 228/- to 230/- per cwt., but anything short of fine grade is difficult to sell. Practically no farmers' butter yet coming in. In egg branch of market there is little change to note over the week, supplies good; trade fair. Hen eggs in case sales average 26/- to 30/- per 120, and extra selected fresh parcels, in small, up to 32/- per 120; best duck eggs, 32/6 to 34/6 per 120; seconds around 30/-, but small duck eggs are almost unsaleable.

CORK BUTTER, April 26.—Firsts, 220/-; seconds, 214/-; fresh butter, 222/- per cwt.

PRODUCE.

LONDON, April 26.—Sugar unchanged. Coffee market remains quite featureless, business being almost at a standstill, and prices weak; mild sorts are sparingly offered; futures quite nominal. Cocoa in steady request at graded prices. Rice, fair inquiry, also beans and peas. Pepper firm, but rather quiet. Tapioca dull; fair; Penang seed sold at 70/-. Shellac inactive, nominal. Rubber flat; crepe, spot, 2/5; sheet, 2/4. Para unaltered. Turpentine unchanged.

LIVERPOOL, Friday.—COCOA—Sales for the week were confined to 3,150 bags West African at 55/- to 65/- per cwt. in bond ex store, as to quality. LINSEED—Small business in cottonseed, crushers have received further supplies, and mills are kept busy. PALM KERNELS—Imports are large, and mills are sufficiently supplied. TALLOW—Imported material is still very scarce; trading in home melt is unsettled owing to Government restriction. The tendency is towards ease in prices. LINSEED OIL—A steady tone features the market at 62/- per cwt. for imports. COTTONSEED OIL unchanged at 75/- per cwt. for refined naked. NITRATE of SODA remains unchanged at £26 10/-. TURPENTINE meets with a good inquiry, and a fair business is passing in American at the quotation of 125/- per cwt. PETROLEUM in good demand at the quotation of 1/7½ to 1/8¼ per gallon. LARD unchanged.

CLYDE CRUSHED SUGAR, April 26.—The market continues steady.

LONDON METALS MARKET.

COPPER market quiet; standard cash and three months, £110 to £110 10/-; electros, £125 to £121; best selected, £123 to £119; strong sheets, £149. LEAD slow; soft foreign, £29 10/- to £28 10/- net. Hay, nominally, £5 10s. to £8 1s. per ton; oaten straw, 4/10 to 5/- and 5/2 per cwt.; wheaten around 3/8 and 3/10 per cwt. for best, but stable requirements now slackening.

FUNERAL OF PASTOR HUGH D. BROWN.

The remains of the late Pastor Hugh D. Brown, M.A., of Harcourt street Baptist Chapel, were interred in Mount Jerome Cemetery on Friday morning. The deceased gentleman, who had filled the highest positions in the Baptist denomination in Ireland, and had been Chairman of the Irish Baptist Home Mission Committee for over twenty-five years, was well known in Dublin, and the very large and representative attendance at the funeral bear eloquent witness to the respect in which he was held by all classes of the community. A brief service at the residence was conducted by Pastor A. Jardine (Belfast), J. A. Pearce (Dublin), and F. W. Pracey (Cork). At the graveside, after the singing of a hymn and the reading of a portion of Scripture, Pastor Jardine delivered an impressive address. He referred to the outstanding gifts of mind and heart and character which had endeared the deceased gentleman to such a large circle, and had been the secret of the unique ministry which he had exercised for nearly thirty five years. At the close of the address Pastor Jardine led in prayer, and the benediction was pronounced by Mr. J. D. Pearson.

LAW REPORTS.

Clare Injunction Proceedings.—In the Rolls Court, in the case of the Congested Districts Board v. Denis Healy, of Bodyke, Co. Clare, Mr. Gerald Farrell (instructed by Mr. John O'Connor) applied on behalf of the plaintiffs for an injunction restraining the defendant from trespassing upon and interfering with the plaintiffs' grazing lands at Cooireaghmore, containing 16a. 1r. It appeared that the defendant was the registered owner of fee-simple lands at Clonmoher, containing 12a. 2r., and that he had covenanted to convey this holding to the C.D.B. in consideration of the Board making a grazing letting to him of the Cooireaghmore lands. The agreement was subject to the defendant making good title to his lands, and that there was no charge or other encumbrance on them. The defendant had failed to fully comply with the condition, and he was ordered to remove his cattle from the lands. He declined to do so, whereupon the Board had them removed. The Master of the Rolls made an order for a perpetual injunction against the defendant, and directed an inquiry as to damages.

Claim by Commercial Traveller.—Mr. Justice Gordon, sitting without a jury, disposed of a case in which James Anthony, Moyne road, Rathmines, sought to recover from S. W. Stevenson, trading as Stevenson and Co., 13 Dame street, Dublin, £175 2/3, of which £157 5/3 was for money lent by the plaintiff to the defendant, and £18 17/- for arrears of salary. The defence filed was that the money was not due, and a plea that plaintiff had accepted promissory notes for payment by instalments, but the defendant did not now appear and was not represented. The debt having been proved, judgment was given for the full amount claimed. Mr. Babington, K.C. (instructed by Messrs. Dobbyn and McCoy) appeared for the plaintiff.

Dublin Bankruptcy Matter.—In the Bankruptcy Court, before Mr. Justice Pim, the matter of William Foran, general provision dealer, 39 Parkgate street, Dublin, a bankrupt, was listed for the examination of witnesses. Mr. Swayne, K.C. (instructed by Mr. Creswell), appeared for the assignees; and Mr. Joseph O'Connor (instructed by Mr. John Moran) represented Mrs. Foran, wife of the bankrupt. Mrs. Foran, examined by Mr. Swayne, stated that when her husband became bankrupt in November, 1917, the business was closed down. It was re-opened by her on 7th December, and carried on by her up to 17th March last, when the premises were burned down. Her husband's policy of insurance was transferred to her in January, and after the fire she made the following claim on the insurance company:—Stock and utensils, £193; trade fittings, £20; and household goods, £86. She admitted having given an erroneous account of the sale of a bacon slicer at her last examination. She was now making a profit of £7 per week, which she attributed to the fact that she was now in charge of the business, and that a butchering trade, in which her husband had lost heavily, had been discontinued. The bankrupt, examined by Mr. Swayne, stated that he was in the butchering business for four months preceding May, 1917. He had made no mention of the insurance policy in his statement of affairs because his wife had a claim on it. He now worked at the business with his wife, and the profit was £7 to £8 per week. There was about £150 worth of stock in the shop when the fire occurred. He could give no explanation of debts amounting to over £1,000 incurred in the year preceding his bankruptcy. All the books kept by his wife were burned. He neither gamlsed on the Stock Exchange nor backed horses. Mr. Justice Pim said the answering of both witnesses was most unsatisfactory. Over £1,000 remained unaccounted for. The matter would be adjourned until Monday, when the bankrupt would have an opportunity of making a full disclosure.

ROYAL DRUMMOND INSTITUTION.

NEW PREMISES BOUGHT.

The annual distribution of prizes to the girls of the Royal Drummond Institution was made yesterday by Mrs. Fry, wife of Major-General W. Fry, C.V.O., C.B., General Staff, in the regretted absence from Ireland of Lady Wimborne. There was a large attendance of friends and supporters of the institution.

After an entertaining programme of songs, dancing, drill, and flag signalling, Mrs. Fry distributed the prizes, and expressed her pleasure in doing so, though they all regretted the absence of Lady Wimborne.

Brigadier-General Grant proposed a vote of thanks to Mrs. Fry.

Mr. Justice Ross, Chairman of the Committee, who seconded the motion, said that no one took a more sympathetic interest in the institution than Mrs. Fry. They had, he continued, entered this year upon a very big project. It was felt that the school was really not big enough for the demands it was intended to supply, and at the end of the war they must almost double the size of the school. Their premises would be totally inadequate for the purpose, and they had, therefore, ventured upon a very daring project—that was to say, they had bought large premises at Bray, to which the school would be moved. The school would be a very much larger school, and it would be in very much more beautiful surroundings, he was glad to say. If it only went on in its new life with the same success it had done in the past, they would all be very well pleased. It was not a thing they could enter upon without a good deal of anxiety, for it would, of course, cost a great deal more. One thing that determined him was that he was very sure that, no matter what happened, the orphan daughters of soldiers would never be forsaken by the public, who owed so much to the British soldier, and whatever they needed would be supplied. (Applause.) He was happy to say that the school was going on as well as ever. They were all indebted to the Matron (Miss McAlister), knowing what an anxious time she had. She had done her work admirably—(applause)—and they had also to acknowledge how well the teachers did their work, earning the gratitude of the Committee and Governors. Thanks were also due to the Secretary, Captain C. Holden, a most valuable officer—(applause)—who had in this year of stress and strain actually collected more than ever before except in the year Queen Victoria gave the institution £500 at the request of the late Field-Marshal Lord Roberts. (Applause.)

The vote was passed in cordial fashion.

EXPORT OF HEIFERS AND STRIPPER COWS.

Having regard to the shipments already allowed in connection with the arrangements recently made for licensing the exportation of a limited number of young heifers and of stripper cows for store purposes, the Department have decided that the grant of licences should be discontinued for the time being. They wish it to be known, therefore, that application for licences received to-day (27th April) on the prescribed form, will be the last considered until further notice.

Fifty-three returned British prisoners, all non-commissioned officers, were landed at Boston yesterday. To-day 247 German military prisoners are being shipped to Holland.

BLADE
Economy

The "Valet" AutoStrop is the only safety razor with a self-contained automatic stropping device, and for this reason its blades last, on an average, four times as long as those of the "no-stropping" type. Probably because of this advantage, and also of the cheapness of "Valet" blades, the public do not always exercise economy in their use. The following hints will enable users to get even more than the two months' service which is claimed as the average life of a single "Valet" AutoStrop blade.

Use no abrasive strop dressing, and keep your strop free from grit.
Don't over-strop—10 seconds daily will keep your blade in the pink of condition.
Don't let anything hard touch the blade edge.
Hold the blade almost flat against the face. It shaves better, besides lasting longer.

There is no shortage of "Valet" blades at present, but in view of constantly increasing manufacturing difficulties reasonable judgment and economy should be exercised in their use.

TOILET HINTS

There is a clear call to national economy, and we all must heed it and answer it, otherwise——?

Economy is necessary in small matters as well as in large, and particularly in articles which are in regular daily use, such as TOILET SOAP.

But economy does not mean using a poor, low-priced article, because inefficiency means waste. True economy is the laying out of money, on necessary articles only, with a view to the best return.

In TOILET SOAP, bear in mind that a fancy box and ornate wrapper have to be paid for by you, and they are of no use to you. Therefore, you should see to it that your money buys "all soap," and the best at that.

BARRINGTON'S "COMPLEXION"
TOILET SOAP
is guaranteed pure, and made from the choicest materials only. Made at our works in Dublin in twelve distinct varieties.

IT IS THE SOAP FOR YOU.

Only 7 Miles from the City.

P. O'CONNOR and SON are favoured with instructions from the Trustee of the late Mr. Thos. Dunn to SELL BY AUCTION, on THURSDAY, 9th MAY, at their Estate Salerooms, 49 QUEEN STREET, DUBLIN, the Interest in this Prime Farm of Land, containing 163 Statute Acres, purchased under the Land Act, subject to the very moderate annuity of £110.

DESCRIPTIVE PARTICULARS.

The Residence, which has only been erected in recent years, is a commodious two-storey one, and the Out-offices consist of stabling, cattle sheds, large corrugated iron hay barn, and enclosed yard.

The Land is prime, well watered and fenced, and is all in grass, with the exception of about 4 acres under tillage.

The Lands have been for some years past, and are at present, let on the 11 months' system, producing very fine profit rents.

The Farm is most conveniently situated on the main road from Dublin to Ashbourne, only 7 miles from Dublin, and a splendid opportunity of acquiring a Farm of such excellent quality so convenient to the city is here presented.

COUNTY TIPPERARY.

DERRYCASTLE, KILLALOE.

HIGHLY ATTRACTIVE SALE OF A VALUABLE RESIDENTIAL DAIRY, FATTENING AND TILLAGE FARM.

THE undersigned is favoured with instructions from General C. W. Gartside-Spaight, to SELL BY PUBLIC AUCTION, on TUESDAY, 7th MAY, 1918, at 12 o'clock summer time,

PART OF THE LANDS OF DERRYCASTLE, containing about 196a. 0r. 13p., Statute Measure. Purchased under the Land Act. Subject to an annuity of £90 6s. 0d. to the Irish Land Commission.

DESCRIPTIVE PARTICULARS.

The Residence is a substantial two-storey house, containing dining and reception rooms, bedrooms, bathroom (hot and cold water), kitchen and pantry, w.c., etc., all in good order.

Attached thereto is a very fine yard, most judiciously laid out, in which stands a most desirable suite of out-offices, comprising stabling for ten horses, loose boxes, coachhouses, granaries, stores, hay and straw lofts, living apartments for yardman, harness room, etc., with a constant supply of water in yard.

FARMYARD.

The Out-offices are commodious, compact, and convenient, in a well-enclosed yard, and include cow and calf houses, stall feeding for thirty cattle; granaries, hay and straw lofts, piggeries, fowl house, and carpenter's workshop. Convenient to farmyard there is a workman's house, containing all the requisite apartments.

THE LANDS.

The Lands, which are three miles from Killaloe, are of the primest quality in the county, well-fenced, and in excellent heart and condition, and adjoin Lough Derg. There are several streams running through the farm, which is bounded from the county road by a well-built wall seven feet high. On the farm are two sheds, with feeding troughs for young horses.

The House, which is beautifully situated near the ruins of the old castle, commanding a fine view of Lough Derg, is approached in front by a nice drive through a well-timbered lawn, and fronted by a flower garden and ornamental shrubs, with tennis ground attached. There is also a large walled-in fruit and vegetable garden, stocked with the best fruit trees, containing about 2½ acres.

In calling the attention of capitalists and others to the above most desirable farm, Subscriber has the greatest confidence that such an opportunity may never again occur in this county of securing one of the best farms in Munster.

TERMS.—One-fourth the purchase money to be deposited on date of Sale, with the usual commission of 5 per cent. to the Auctioneer.
